

Names Three to Study Railroad Wage Dispute

Roosevelt Appoints Fact-Finding Commission STRIKE IS VOTED Action Postpones Walk-out for 60-Day Period

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt appointed a three-member fact-finding commission today to investigate the wage dispute between railroads and their employees.

Members of the commission are Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme court, chairman; Prof. Harry A. Millis of the University of Chicago, and Dean James M. Landis of the Harvard law school.

Under the railroad labor law, they will report within 30 days.

Railroad workers have voted to strike if the carriers insist on a 15 per cent wage reduction proposed for Oct. 1. Because of arbitration machinery contained in the labor law, however, employees could not actually walk out before Dec. 1.

Chicago—(AP)—Nearly a million railroad workers from section hands to streamliner engineers were committed today to a nationwide strike this weekend but presidential intervention, postponing the walkout, was considered imminent.

The strike was ordered to consist of a 15 per cent pay cut. Deadlines were fixed late yesterday by the chiefs of 19 rail brotherhoods after tabulating a strike poll.

The zero hour for 790,000 employees in 18 unions constituting the railway labor executives association was 6 o'clock p. m., Friday. The 160,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen were ordered to quit work at 12:01 a. m. Saturday.

All of the nation's major railroads were involved in the dispute.

Action Delays Strike
Under the railway labor act such action automatically would postpone a walkout and maintain existing wage scales for a 60-day period. Hence, the status quo apparently will remain until Dec. 1.

The carriers decided on May 12 that a wage slash was imperative in view of their financial condition. The unions rejected the proposed cut and negotiations began on July 18.

The national mediation board entered the dispute on Aug. 11 when the rail management and the unions admitted they were deadlocked. The failure of mediation was announced Aug. 31. Arbitration was rejected by the unions and the carriers immediately fixed Oct. 1 as the date for the new wage scales. The strike poll followed.

Military Board Tries To Determine Cause Of Airplane Tragedy

Quantico, Va.—(AP)—A military board of inquiry examined today the wreckage of a United States marine transport plane that crashed into the Potomac river, killing four service men and injuring two others.

The plane, piloted by Captain John Wehle, West Point, N. Y., went out of control immediately after the takeoff at Brown field marine base airport. It smashed through three trees and fell into 100 feet of water.

Master Sergeant Benjamin F. Belcher, Quantico Staff Sergeant Laurence Granville, Biggs, Calif., Corporal Raymond Kennedy, Mass., and Private Frederick M. Hudson, Jr., Drexel Hill, Pa., were killed.

Captain Wehle, a son-in-law of General Smedley Butler, and Corporal Robert L. Jonsson, Astoria, N. Y., suffered only scratches and bruises.

Officials said the six men had taken off for a routine training flight last night when the plane dropped into trees during a left turn.

State Labor Board Tries To End Strike

Calls New Conference After Racine Union Rejects Proposal

HOPE TO OPEN PLANTS Strikers Refuse to Return To Work for 60-Day Period

Racine—(AP)—The state labor relations board and representatives of Governor LaFollette called a new conference today in an effort to mediate the Nash motors labor dispute which has caused the shutdown of Nash plants in Racine, Kenosha and Milwaukee.

William F. Ashe, director of the state department of commerce, represented the governor in a meeting beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. Ashe assisted S. Norman Moe, regional director for the state labor board.

The attempt to bring about a settlement followed the Racine Nash Automobile Workers union's rejection of a proposal offered yesterday by union and company officials and state representatives. The membership voting last night rejected the plan 718 to 35.

The proposal specified the Racine union men return to work for a 60-day period while a new seniority schedule was being drawn up, after which the Racine plant would be closed and the employees transferred to the Kenosha factory.

Laid Off Aug. 22
Racine employees were laid off Aug. 22 and immediately began picketing to prevent removal of equipment to Kenosha, where consolidated operations are planned.

The proposal was rejected as production also ceased at the affiliated Seaman Body corporation plant in Milwaukee, and the Kenosha Nash plant, Nash-Kelvinator corporation announced production of next year's automobiles cannot be continued so long as the union prevents removal of Racine equipment to Kenosha. The shutdown affected approximately 3,000 Milwaukee and Kenosha workers.

The union membership instructed its executive committee to demand the company operate the Racine plant as heretofore.

Attending the conference at which the rejected proposal was drafted were William F. Ashe, director of the state department of commerce; S. Norman Moe, Milwaukee district director of the state labor board; J. K. Kyle, executive secretary of the board; company officials headed by R. A. DeVlieg, general works manager of the Racine and Kenosha plants, and executive boards of the Kenosha, Racine and Seaman Body locals.

Quick acceptance by the union had been expected.

Backs Teacher in Battle for Job
Racine Judge Rules Marriage Not Sufficient Cause for Dismissal

Racine—(AP)—Circuit Judge E. B. Belden yesterday upheld Mrs. Mae Freeman Ryan in her battle with the school board by ruling her marriage was not sufficient cause for dismissal as a teacher.

Mrs. Ryan, married last March, argued that the Wisconsin teachers' tenure law provides experienced teachers cannot be discharged without sufficient cause. Marriage, she contended, was not one.

The board, which did not renew her contract because of policy against hiring married women teachers, has announced it would appeal to the state supreme court.

Army May Limit Flying To Men Under 45 Years
Washington—(AP)—Army officers said today the death of General Oscar Westover, chief of the air corps, had strengthened service sentiment to limit army flying for men past 45.

Such a proposal has been under discussion for 20 years, one official said. Regulations have not been changed, however, since Westover, who was 53, crashed fatally a week ago at Burbank, Calif.

Since an absolute ban on flying for officers past 45 would ground some of the army's best known pilots, including Brigadier General Henry H. Arnold, acting air corps chief, military circles expressed belief in some possible applying only to actual combat flights.

The army ordered some three score planes from Langley field, Va., to take part in General Westover's funeral late today, preceding burial in Arlington National cemetery, near here.

Urges Business and Government to Work Out 'Co-Ordination of Policies'

New York—(AP)—Richard C. Patterson, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce, asserted today that business cannot escape the responsibility of meeting squarely a challenge to analyze its policies and determine their consistency with the nation's social obligations.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Controllers' Institute of America, Patterson urged the co-operation of business and government to "work out an effective co-ordination of policies."

"Our system of free, competitive enterprise has contributed immeasurably to the economic and social welfare of the country," he said. "The great majority of our people still have confidence in it and we strive only to preserve and strengthen it."

An examination, Patterson said, must be made to determine its existing flaws. "For no one will carry more than business itself from whatever steps are taken to establish competition more securely and to define and clarify the role of government as traffic officer in enforcing rules of fair competition."

Patterson, representative of business on the national economic committee undertaking "an ultimate inventory of American business," said that "whatever is done to gain broader knowledge of our competitive system in the end, enable us to preserve private enterprise and increase its usefulness in supplying our economic needs."

Hitler Unreasonable but Britain Doesn't Want to Fight, Chamberlain Says

Czech Regime Flatly Rejects Hitler's 'Final' Terms

PREPARES TO FIGHT Finds Proposals Take 'Every Safeguard' From Nation

London—(AP)—Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovak minister to London, today made public his government's note flatly refusing to accept Adolf Hitler's "final" terms for cutting up Czechoslovakia as the price of European peace.

Publication of the note, which was delivered Sunday to British Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax, was considered today in the light of a direct reply to Chancellor Hitler's address last night, when the fuhrer warned he would act if he did not get what he defined as Sudetenland by Oct. 1.

The note said: "My government wished me to declare . . . that Hitler's demands in their present form are absolutely and unconditionally unacceptable to my government."

"Against these new cruel demands my government feels bound to make their utmost resistance and we shall do so, God helping us."

When Chancellor Hitler uttered his demands to cheering Nazis in Berlin last night there was no indication he knew the Czech government Sunday had told the British and French ministers it could not accept Hitler's ultimatum for large territorial concessions in Sudeten areas.

Masaryk's unusual step in publishing the note made the Czechoslovak government's stand absolutely clear and gave a direct answer to Hitler. Diplomatic notes passing between governments usually are not published without express agreement between the governments concerned.

Thus it appeared Masaryk's move was made with the approval of Chamberlain and Premier Edouard Daladier of France and constituted a new statement of stern policy to be followed in concerted British, French and Czechoslovak action.

The note added that Czechoslovakia expected France and Great Britain to assist her.

The Czechoslovak note said the document and map presented by Hitler "is a de facto ultimatum of a Turn to page 2 col. 3

No Probe Unless Board Votes Funds

Sheboygan Judge Says Provision Must First be Made for Expenses

Sheboygan—(AP)—The county board was confronted today with a memorandum from Circuit Judge Henry A. Dettling that he would not feel justified in impaneling a grand jury to investigate vice and gambling conditions unless the board would appropriate a fund sufficient to meet the expense.

A citizens' committee circulated petitions asking for the investigation.

"When the petition was presented to me," Judge Dettling wrote Board Chairman James Gannon, "I advised the community that it was my hope that conditions might be improved without the necessity of calling a grand jury."

The jurist said Sheboygan county has never had a grand jury and he did not know what the expense would be.

"I understand," he wrote, "our neighboring county of Waukesha has already spent approximately $15,000 and has not completed its work."

Gannon said last night he was not certain whether a special board meeting would be called. The fall meeting is five weeks away.

Identify Body of Woman Found Off Coney Island

New York—(AP)—The body of a woman found in the ocean off Coney island Sunday was identified today as that of Mrs. Georgia Heiker, wife of Harry C. Peiker, deputy general manager of the Home Owners Loan corporation in Washington.

Mrs. Peiker vanished Saturday night from the French liner Champlain, en route to New York. Consents of two letters she left with her 11-year-old daughter, Nan, also aboard the ship, were not disclosed.

The body was found by the crew of a fishing boat, who at first believed she was a hurricane victim. Identification was made by John Howard Haley, an HOLC official here and friend of the Peikers.

FORGER SENTENCED

Janesville—(AP)—Otto Manke, 53, of Milwaukee, who pleaded guilty to forgery, was sentenced by Judge Ernest P. Agnew yesterday to serve 12 to 18 months in the state prison.

Morgenthau Says Treasury Ready For Any Crisis

Assures Nation Preparations Made to Meet War Situation

Washington—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau assured the nation today the treasury was prepared for any eventualities from the European crisis.

He did not say what preparations had been made, but he implied that, for the protection of American business and finance, the administration's financial leaders had drafted a program dealing with these questions which would arise in case of war abroad.

1. Should the stock markets be closed?

2. What should be done to protect the dollar in foreign markets?

3. What should be done about all the foreign money which has come here in recent weeks in search of safety?

The stock market question was answered on high authority last week in the negative.

Morgenthau apparently had in mind primarily the other two questions when he told reporters yesterday:

"I like to think that the treasury always is ready for any situation and as far as humanly possible to get ready, the treasury is prepared."

He declined to go into details.

CABINET SESSION

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt called his cabinet into session today for a momentous discussion of what war in Europe would mean to the United States.

Nine of the ten members were at hand. Postmaster General James A. Farley, who has been keeping out of town speaking engagements, was the only absentee.

That war would affect all sections of American economy and raise innumerable legal and international problems has been accepted generally.

The president laid before the cabinet the replies to his Monday peace message received from President Benes of Czechoslovakia and Premiers Chamberlain of Great Britain and Daladier of France, and Chancellor Hitler of Germany. Hitler's reply, a day later than the others, came today.

Confessions Connect George 'Bugs' Moran With Counterfeiters

Chicago—(AP)—Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright said today the signed confessions of an engraver and two printers forged the last link in a chain of evidence connecting George "Bugs" Moran, prohibition era gang leader, and six others with a $400,000 counterfeit securities ring.

The confessions were obtained, Wright said, from Berger Hanson, 47, Emil Ahrens, 42, and Del F. Brun, 45, who were seized in a raid on a S. Clark street engraving shop.

Wright said Hanson, the engraver, and the two printers had counterfeited $400,000 worth of New York railroad bonds and American Express Travelers' checks that were offered for sale throughout the country last spring.

Moran and the others were indicted last June. Their trial has been set for Oct. 27.

The plot collapsed when three members of the gang cashed two counterfeit travelers' checks, Wright said.

Denies Kidnaping of Pair From St. Louis

Minneapolis—(AP)—John Couch pleaded innocent in federal court today to kidnaping Daniel Fahy, Jr., and Peggy Gross, both of St. Louis, Mo., last Aug. 13.

Kleve Flakne, court-appointed counsel for Couch, reserved the right to change the plea and hinted a possible insanity defense. Trial was set for Monday.

Couch is charged with kidnaping the couple and taking them to their car to a point near Minneapolis. He was captured a few days later at a farm near Effie, Minn. His alleged partner, Otto Merdith, was fatally shot when he tried to flee from G-men.

Couch escaped Sept. 4 from the Ramsey county jail by digging bricks from under a window with a soup spoon. He was recaptured the following day.

Session on War Crisis

Ottawa—(Canadian Press)—The Canadian cabinet met in special session today to consider the Dominion's place with respect to the crisis in Europe. Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King presided over the session, attended by 10 ministers.

HITLER DURING HISTORIC SPEECH
Adolf Hitler, speaking to "the entire reich," declared at Berlin "I have decided that we shall place" the Sudeten region of Czechoslovakia "under German sovereignty." He added that if President Benes "does not want peace we will have to take matters in our own hands." He told his countrymen Germany has "an armed force the like of which the world has never seen." The reichsfuhrer is shown here as he delivered his historic speech. This picture was radioed from Berlin to New York.

Embassy in London Asks All Americans in Britain To Return Home if Possible

Washington—(AP)—Two American warships sped toward Europe today for possible service in returning refugees or other duty in the event of war.

The navy said the cruiser Savannah which sailed Saturday from Philadelphia and the destroyer Somers which left Norfolk the same day would proceed to British ports.

They were said officially merely to be on "routine duty."

Already at Portsmouth, England, is the cruiser Honolulu, and in the Mediterranean is the cruiser Omaha and two destroyers, the Claxton and Manley. The new cruiser Nashville is enroute home from a training cruise to European ports.

London—(AP)—The United States embassy in London today urged Americans in Great Britain "to arrange to return to the United States" if they could do so.

A statement issued without comment by an embassy official said: "Notice to American citizens: 'In view of the complicated situation prevailing in Europe it is considered advisable to recommend that American citizens who have no compelling reason to continue their sojourn here arrange to return to the United States.'

Washington—(AP)—The state department "strongly advised" Americans today to forego travel to Europe.

The department warning was based upon reports reaching here from nearly all sections of Europe that travel there was becoming increasingly difficult.

Delays are being experienced by American citizens, the department said, in obtaining immediate passage home.

The department made an exception to its strong advice only in "cases of absolute necessity."

The state department's announcement read: "Reports reaching the state department from nearly all sections of Europe emphasize the increasing difficulties of travel and the delays being experienced by Americans in obtaining immediate passage home."

In the circumstances the department of state strongly advises all American citizens for the time being to forego travel to Europe, except in cases of absolute necessity."

'Cutting Red Tape' to Help New England Area

Boston—(AP)—The federal government opened its purse strings wide today to help New England recover from what WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins called "the worst hurricane disaster in any region of our country."

Discovery of nearly a score more bodies in Rhode Island sent the six-state list of known dead in New England to 478 as Hopkins announced he was "cutting red tape" to permit each state administrator to allocate funds to projects without further administration approval.

As the death toll continued to rise the Red Cross announced it expected to aid 60,000 families.

Woman Is Killed When Struck by Automobile

Adams, Wis.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Bakazan, 48, was killed last night when she was struck by an automobile driven by Les Dye as she stepped onto Highway 13 in front of her home. Dye said he was blinded by headlights of another car.

Promoter Asks Million Dollars for Alleged Broken Dionne Contract

Chicago—(AP)—$1,000,000 lawsuit involving a promoter's frustrated plan to exhibit the Dionne quintuplets at the 1934 Century of Progress exposition was called for trial in federal court today. A jury was chosen shortly before noon.

Principal defendant was Dr. Alvan Roy Dafoe, the Canadian country doctor who officiated when the famous five daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Dionne were born at Callander, Ontario, on May 28, 1934.

The doctor arrived yesterday with his attorney, Arthur G. Slaght, K. C., M. P.

Ivan I. Spear, Chicago promoter, sued Dr. Dafoe and 11 others for $1,000,000 damages.

Spear alleged there was a conspiracy to break a contract he made with the quint's father, giving Spear exclusive rights to exhibit the

Will Resist if Any Nation Tries to Rule 'World by Force'

SIX-MINUTE SPEECH Won't Involve Empire Merely to Save Small Nation

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared tonight "we can not undertake to involve the whole of the British empire in war however much we may sympathize with a small nation."

But at another point in his broadcast to the empire and the world the prime minister said:

"If I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by force I would not hesitate to resist it."

Chamberlain spoke only about six minutes, beginning at 8 o'clock p. m. (1 p. m. C. S. T.). His address the most momentous British broadcast since the abdication crisis of 1936, was delivered from the cabinet room of famed No. 10 Downing street.

After he had finished his speech was broadcast in German.

Chamberlain said he would not hesitate to take a third trip to Germany if he thought it would do any good, but at the moment "I can see nothing further that I can usefully do in the way of mediation."

"I find Herr Hitler's attitude unreasonable in his final demands," he continued. "But I shall not give up my hope for a peaceful solution."

Tried to Halt War

"Tomorrow parliament is going to meet and I shall be making a first statement on the events which have led up to the present critical situation. An earlier statement would have been impossible while I was flying backwards and forwards across Europe and the position was changing from hour to hour."

"But today there is still for a brief time and I want to say a few words to you men and women of Britain and perhaps to others as well."

"I have done all that one man can do to halt this war."

"Tomorrow I shall be making a full statement of events which led up to the anxious present situation," Chamberlain said.

"I thank those who have written to my wife and myself."

"It has been heart-breaking to me when they thought too soon that the danger of war was past."

"How horribly incredible that we should be digging trenches and trying on gas masks because of a quarrel which is taking place in a far away country."

Agreement Possible
"It seems still more impossible that a quarrel that is already settled in principle should be a subject of war."

"I can well understand the reasons why the Czech government have felt unable to accept the

League Approves Chinese Appeal

Council Rules Punitive Measures Applicable Against Japan

Geneva—(AP)—The council of the League of Nations decided today that punitive measures were applicable against Japan.

It was the first time that Article 16—the "sanctions" article which was invoked against Italy in the Italo-Ethiopian war—has been declared applicable against a state that was not a member of the league.

After the decision at a closed council session, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, the Chinese delegate, declared:

"The only question now is to what extent various members of the league will participate in sanctions."

Dr. Koo said China would ask league members to ban shipments of oil and airplanes to Japan.

Some delegates said one of the reasons China's appeal was approved was that in the event of a European war, league powers want to back a similar appeal by Czechoslovakia.

Picketing in 7th Week

At Church in Michigan

Valcan, Mich.—(AP)—The seventh week of the "strike" at St. Barbara's Catholic church found picketing parishioners determined as ever today to keep the Rev. Simon Borkowski as their pastor.

Pickets have kept Father Borkowski a virtual prisoner in the parish residence to prevent him from fulfilling an order to return to the Salvatorian seminary at St. Nazianz, Wis.

They said they had received no answer to an appeal to Rome for intervention. Picketing continues on a 24-hour basis.

Hitler Maps Germany's Case For Roosevelt and Says War Or Peace Depends on Czechs

Shares President's 'Views On Immeasurable Consequences' of Strife

Berlin—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler carefully marshalled Germany's whole case today in an unusually long communication replying to President Roosevelt's appeal for European peace.

He ended with those words: "It is now solely in the hands of the Czechoslovak government and not in the hands of the German government to decide whether it desires peace or war."

Hitler appealed to the president's understanding. "I have the conviction," he wrote, "that if you visualize the entire development of the Sudeten German problem from its beginnings until the present day, you will realize that the German government certainly was not wanting in patience or a sincere will to reach a peaceful understanding."

"Be assured that I thoroughly appreciate the high-minded intentions underlying your argument," the reichsfuehrer telegraphed in response to the message Roosevelt sent yesterday to the leaders of Germany, Czechoslovakia, Britain and France.

Roosevelt appealed for continuance of peaceful negotiations in an effort to solve the Czechoslovak crisis and avoid war.

"For that very reason," said the chancellor after his reference to the "immeasurable consequences" of such a conflict, "I can and must decline every responsibility of the German people and its leadership if, contrary to all my efforts to date, further developments should actually lead to an outbreak of hostilities."

Hitler Outlines Stand

"In order to form correct judgment concerning the Sudeten problem now under discussion it is indispensable to direct thoughts to events in which in the last analysis the origin of these problems and the dangers are rooted."

"The German people in the year 1918 put down their arms in the faith that the conclusion of peace with the opponents at that time would bring a realization of the principles and ideals which were solemnly proclaimed by President Wilson and just as solemnly accepted by all the powers at war as binding upon them."

"Never in history has the faith of the people been more disgracefully betrayed than happened then, and the conditions of peace forced upon the vanquished nations in the suburbs of Paris (Versailles) has fulfilled none of the promises given."

"On the contrary they created a political regime in Europe that reduced the vanquished nations to pariahs, stripped of all rights, and that was recognized from the beginning by all judicious persons as untenable."

Nationality Ignored

"One of the points which most clearly revealed the character of the dictates of 1919 was the founding of the Czechoslovak state and the fixing of its boundaries without in any way taking into account history and nationality."

"Sudetenland, too, was included in it, although this region has always been German and although its inhabitants unanimously declared their desire for annexation (union) with the German Reich after the destruction of the Hapsburg monarchy."

"Thus the right of self-determination that was proclaimed by President Wilson as the most important foundation for national life was simply denied the Sudeten Germans."

"But that was not enough."

"In the treaties of 1919 certain obligations, which according to their wording were very far-reaching, were imposed upon the Czechoslovak state as regards the German racial element."

"From the very beginning these obligations were not kept."

Says League Failed

"The League of Nations failed completely to carry out the task assigned to it, namely, to guarantee the fulfillment of these obligations."

"Since then Sudetenland has been engaged in a constant combat for the preservation of its independence."

"It was a natural and unavoidable development that after the German Reich regained its strength and Austria was re-united with it that pressure of the Sudeten Germans increased for maintaining their culture and for becoming closely associated with Germany."

"Despite the loyal attitude of the Sudeten German party and its leaders the points at issue between them and the Czechs became ever more pronounced."

"From day to day it became more clearly evident that the government in Prague was not willing to grant most of the elementary rights of the Sudeten Germans."

"One the contrary it attempted to bring about the Czechization of Sudetenland with ever more forceful methods."

"It was inevitable that this procedure led to ever greater and more serious tension."

Accuses Czechs

"The German government at first in no wise interfered with this development and maintained its calm restraint even when in May of this year the Czechoslovak government proceeded to mobilize its army on the pretext of manufacturing of pure cloth, that German troops had been concentrated."

"The fact that Germany at that time refrained from taking military counter-measures has merely served, however, to strengthen the intransigence of the government in Prague."

"The progress of negotiations by the Sudeten German party with the government for a peaceful solution clearly showed this."

"These negotiations brought definite proof that the Czechoslovak government had no idea of tackling the Sudeten German problem really from its very foundation and to bring it to a just solution.

"Insufferable Conditions"

"As a consequence, conditions in the Czechoslovak state, as is generally known, have become entirely insufferable during the last weeks."

"Political persecution and economic suppression have plunged the Sudeten Germans into unspeakable misery."

"To characterize these conditions it is sufficient to refer to the following:

"At this moment we count 214,000 Sudeten German fugitives who had to leave their house and hearth in their ancestral homeland and who brought themselves into safety across the German border because they saw therein the only and last possibility for evading the revolting Czech regime of force and bloodiest terror."

"Countless dead, thousands of injured, tens of thousands of persons arrested and imprisoned, desolated villages are the accusing witnesses before world opinion, of an outbreak of hostilities carried out for a long time by the Prague government which you in your telegram rightly fear."

Cites Nurnberg Speech

"Entirely aside from the German economic life in the Sudeten German territory for 20 years systematically destroyed by the Czech government, which already shows all the signs of ruin, which you anticipate as the result of an outbreak of war, these are the facts which compelled me in my Nurnberg speech of Sept. 13 to state before the whole world that the deprivation of rights of the three and one half millions of Germans in Czechoslovakia must be stopped and that these people if they of themselves cannot find justice and help, must receive both from the German Reich."

"However, to make a last attempt to reach the goal in a peaceful way, I made concrete proposals for the solution of the problem in a memorandum delivered on Sept. 23 to the British premier, which, in the meantime has been made public."

"Since the Czechoslovakian government had previously declared itself already to be in agreement with the British and French governments that the Sudeten German settlement area would be separated from the Czechoslovakian state and joined to the German Reich, the proposals of the German memorandum contemplate nothing else than to bring about a prompt and equitable fulfillment of that Czechoslovakian promise."

"Not Lacking Patience"

"It is my conviction that you, Mr. President, when you realize the whole development of the Sudeten German problem from its inception to the present day, will recognize that the German government has truly not been lacking either in patience or a sincere desire for a peaceful understanding. It is not Germany who is to blame for the fact that there is any Sudeten German problem at all, and that the present unjustifiable circumstances have arisen from it."

"The terrible fate of the people affected by the problem no longer admits of a further postponement of its solution. The possibilities of arriving at a just settlement by agreement are therefore exhausted with the proposals of the German memorandum. It does not rest with the German government, but with the Czechoslovakian government alone, to decide, whether it wants peace or war."

Litvinoff Wants Three-Power Show Of Force as Answer to Reich Chief

Geneva—(AP)—Authoritative sources reported today that Maxim Litvinoff, soviet foreign commissar, had proposed a mighty, three-power military demonstration to insure peace by a show of force.

This plan, said to have been suggested to London and Paris by the Russian diplomat, would call for a display of British, French and Russian naval, army and air force power, the only possible answer to Adolf Hitler's Germany.

Litvinoff's Geneva staff was busy with telephone calls to Paris and London and short wave radio talks to Moscow from the moment Hitler concluded last night the address in which he expressed his determination to annex Sudetenland and set Saturday as the deadline for Czechoslovakia to give to him.

British, French and Russian delegations kept in close contact with envoys of Turkey, Rumania, Yugoslavia and other potential allies.

Sources close to the Russian delegation to the League of Nations declared Litvinoff's "peace through force" plan embraced military measures which would leave no doubt of an intention to fight if Hitler tried to take the Sudeten German part of Czechoslovakia by force.

Suggested measures of the plan, they said, included: a demonstration flight of Russian and French bombers to Prague to show Hitler how quickly Czechoslovakia could get aid from the air; massing of large Russian forces on the Rumanian border where they would have to enter that country to reach Prague, and concentration of the British home fleet and the French Atlantic fleet in the North sea.

sort usually presented to a vanquished nation and not a proposition to a sovereign state which has shown the greatest possible readiness to make sacrifices for the appeasement of Europe.

"Amazed at Contents"

"Not the smallest trace of such readiness for sacrifices has yet been manifested by Mr. Hitler's government."

"My government is amazed at the contents of the memorandum. The proposals go far beyond what we agreed to in the so-called Anglo-French plan."

"They deprive us of every safeguard for our national existence." "We are to yield up large proportions of our carefully prepared defenses and admit German armies deep into our country before we have been able to organize it on a new basis or made any preparations for its defense."

"Our national and economic independence would automatically disappear with the acceptance of Mr. Hitler's plan."

"The whole process of moving the population is to be reduced to panic flight on the part of those who will not accept the German Nazi regime."

"They have to leave their homes without even the right to take their personal belongings or even, in the case of peasants, their cows."

"Not Nation of Slaves"

"The nation of Saint Wenceslas, John Hus and Thomas Masaryk will not be a nation of slaves," the note concluded.

"We rely upon the two great western democracies whose wishes we have followed much against our own judgment, to stand by us in our hour of trial."

The note was signed by Jan Masaryk, son of Czechoslovakia's founder and first president, Thomas Masaryk.

Adds to War Danger

Great Britain faced the danger of war by bringing France and soviet Russia into a new triple entente and by dispatching a new plea for peace to Hitler.

Chamberlain issued the latest appeal from his Downing street residence after last midnight.

He first studied for an hour the text of the German fuchrer's speech.

Britain followed this address with an authoritative warning that "Great Britain and Russia will stand by France," who would be

Shape Plans for Statewide Canned Pea Sales Drive

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin Agricultural authority will cooperate with Wisconsin retailers, wholesalers, brokers and canners in a statewide canned pea sales drive starting Oct. 17. The drive will last one week.

Wilbur G. Carlson, manager of the WAA, announced that an advertising campaign will be promoted, that will distribute more than 100,000 pieces of sales material, including newspaper and radio. A $100,000 fund has been set aside by the state for such purposes.

Carlson said wholesale grocers will distribute sales kits to retailers throughout the state Saturday in preparation for the drive.

"This is the first large scale marketing venture by the WAA, which was created by the 1937 legislature as a marketing agency for Wisconsin farm products."

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Lecture in Wisconsin

Washington—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt refuses to make advance copies of speeches because she does not want to be bored while she is talking.

The first lady, announcing several autumn speaking engagements today, said she never speaks from a completely written manuscript.

"I found that if I did not have to think about what I was saying," she said, "I became bored with my own conversation."

She uses notes for her talks.

Mrs. Roosevelt said her customary autumn lecture tour would be from Oct. 14 to 28. Talks in Kansas, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Ohio are scheduled.

O'Connor Believed Sure Of Maryland Nomination

Baltimore—(AP)—Seven men and women, members of a single county delegation to the Democratic convention, appeared today to have sealed Attorney General Herbert R. O'Connor's nomination as the party's candidate for governor of Maryland.

Records and Maryland's second choice system of voting obscured the result of the primary election Sept. 12 until yesterday.

Members of the Prince Georges county delegation to the Democratic nominating convention tomorrow, they decided last night to swing their seven votes to O'Connor, thus assuring him more than enough votes to clinch the nomination.

State Milk Output Is Higher Than Last Year

Madison—(AP)—The crop reporting service of the United States department of agriculture said today milk production in Wisconsin is substantially higher than last year.

The department said there are 116 pounds of milk produced for every 100 pounds last year. The increase is due to unusually good pastures, more cows, and greater production from each cow. Production also is 10 per cent ahead of the 10-year average, the department reported, adding that the nation's output also is at a new high.

DIES OF INJURIES

Fond du Lac—(AP)—Mrs. Josephine Ziegler, 55, died at a hospital here yesterday of injuries suffered in an automobile crash near Marytown last Saturday.

The warning did not make clear whether Britain would consider invasion of German-speaking Sudetenland to be aggression and call forth the armed might of the three powers.

Hitler's Position Is Unreasonable, Chamberlain Says

terms which have been put to them in the German memorandum.

"Yet I believe, after my talks with Herr Hitler, that it ought to be possible to arrange for transferring the territory that the Czech government has agreed to give to Germany by agreement under conditions which would insure fair treatment to the population concerned."

"After my first visit to Berchtesgaden, I did get to the Czech government the proposals which gave the substance of what Herr Hitler wanted, and I was taken completely by surprise when I got back to Germany and found that he insisted that the territory should be handed over to him immediately, and immediately occupied by German troops without previous arrangements for safeguarding the people within the territory who were not Germans and who did not want to join the German Reich."

"Unreasonable Attitude"

"I must say that I find that attitude unreasonable. If it arises out of any doubts that Herr Hitler feels about the intentions of the Czech government to carry out their promises and hand over the territory, I have offered on the part of the British government to guarantee their words, and I am sure the value of our promise will not be underrated anywhere."

"I shall not give up the hope of peaceful solution or abandon my efforts for peace as long as any chance for peace remains."

"I would not hesitate to pay even a third visit to Germany if I thought it would do any good."

At one point, the prime minister said:

"However much we may sympathize with a small nation confronted with a big, a powerful neighbor, we cannot in all the circumstances undertake to involve the whole British empire in war simply on her account."

Need "Larger Issues"

"If we have to fight it must be on larger issues than that."

"I am, myself, a man of peace to the depths of my soul."

"Foreign conflict between nations is a nightmare to me. But if I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by fear of its force, I should feel that it must be resisted."

"Under such a domination the people who believe in liberty would not feel life worth living."

Chamberlain told his countrymen:

"Meanwhile, there are certain things we can and should do at home."

"Volunteers are still wanted for air raid precautions, for fire brigade and police reserves and for the territorial (reserve) units."

"I know that all of you, men and women alike, are ready to play your part in the defense of the country and I ask you to offer your services, if you have not already done so, to the local authorities, who will tell you if you are wanted and in what capacities."

Precautionary Measures

"Don't be alarmed if you hear of men being called up to man anti-aircraft defenses or ships."

"These are only precautionary measures such as a government must take in times like these, but they do not necessarily mean that we have determined on war or that war is imminent."

"... For the present I ask you to wait as calmly as you can the events of the next few days."

"As long as war has not begun,

Czechs Say Hitler Trying to Destroy Them as Free State

Broadcast Claims Nation Would be Unable to Protect Territory

Prague—(AP)—The Czechoslovak government radio broadcast indignantly today that Reichsfuehrer Hitler's demands showed a "brutal desire to crush Czechoslovakia as a free state."

The broadcast was made at about the same time as the Czechoslovak legation in London disclosed officially that Prague refused to submit to Germany's demands for cession of Sudetenland as stated in Hitler's memorandum of Sept. 23.)

"The form given by Hitler to his memorandum," the government station announced, "is sufficient to show that it is not enough to make an agreement and maintain peace."

"One feels in Hitler's memorandum a brutal desire to crush Czechoslovakia as a free state."

"The memorandum demands annexation to Germany of territory counting 3,736,000 inhabitants of whom 2,823,000 speak German and 816,000 Czech."

Say Figures Inaccurate

"On the other hand, in the territory where Hitler demands a plebiscite there are 1,116,000 Czechs and only 144,000 Germans who speak the German language."

"It results from this that Germany would incorporate 816,000 Czechs into Germany and there would remain only 102,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia."

"The Hitler memorandum is flatly directed against the economic existence of Czechoslovakia. As a result, Czechoslovakia would be deprived of a great part of her forests and her highways and railways broke in two."

"On the other hand, Czechoslovakia would lose deposits on the Elbe river and water highways to Bratislava (border town at the junction of the German, Hungarian and Czechoslovak frontiers on the Danube.)"

"Czechoslovakia would be so weakened in a military way that the great part of her territory, notably Bohemia and Moravia, would be at the mercy of Germany."

Await Negotiations

Popular resentment of Hitler's threat to act by Saturday unless he received the Sudetenland mounted while Czechoslovakia marked time waiting the outcome of renewed British-French efforts to solve the issue peacefully.

Circles close to the government expressed hope that the "friendly ultimatum" of London and Paris would draw some of the fire out of Hitler's denunciation of Czechoslovakia—the state, its president and its people.

The Czechoslovak press described Hitler's attack on President Benes as without precedent in history.

Officially there was absolute silence. But qualified sources emphasized that the public never had closed the door to further negotiations and still believed settlement could be made in peace.

Urge More Efficient Distribution System

Boston—(AP)—Two members of President Roosevelt's cabinet today urged a distribution technique as efficient and economical as that already attained in production.

In a letter to the tenth annual Boston Conference on Distribution, Secretary of State Hull asserted the progress of industrial technique had "overcome most of our problems in producing the good necessary to man's well-being," and added: "Human ingenuity must prove able to overcome the complexities which beset our attempts to secure a wider and more equitable distribution of that plenty."

Secretary of Commerce Roper, also in a letter to the conference, said:

"In our domestic as well as in our foreign trade activities, the objective of all should be to balance economical and efficient distribution technique with that already obtained in production. The best safeguard of world peace is mutual sympathy and understanding of mutual problems."

London Subway Stations Being Transformed Into Shelters Against Raids

talks with Hitler was taken as an ominous sign.

The prime minister will tell the whole story to parliament tomorrow and many believed national conscription plans were in readiness.

London—(AP)—London, nerve center of the British empire, today prepared for the possible arrival of enemy airplanes by designating the city's two deepest subway stations for immediate transformation into air raid shelters.

The two stations, at Charing Cross, almost exactly in the center of London, were ordered closed at 8 o'clock tonight (1 p. m. C. S. T.) by the London transport board for "urgent structural works."

The nature of the work was not disclosed officially but it was stated the closing order would remain in effect "until further notice."

Authoritative quarters indicated that vast underground shelters against air bombers would be built, part of the greatest defense preparations in British history.

Altogether nine subway stations will be closed, but apparently the "alterations" will be made only at the two stations coming into Charing Cross.

Arrangements have been made to route traffic around the closed stations or make connections there with surface transport.

All night long through the drizzling rain, Britain's old men dug trenches in parks and vacant lots. All night long her young men rolled away to their guns along the coast.

Dig Up Gardens

In the ghostly glare of torchlight residents dug up their gardens. Convinced their peace-time hours were numbered, they threw out their chrysanthemums and dug themselves refuges below ground.

Trucks filled with gas masks rumbled across the city.

Police went from door to door with instructions on how to darken windows in air raid blackouts.

Everything imaginable was turned into air raid shelters. Workers sealed the wine cellar at Windsor castle. They barricaded railroad tunnels, old caves along the south coast, church crypts, bank vaults.

In a single night, Englishmen sought to prove the boast "we don't need conscription." Sound trucks appealing for "anybody who can swing a pick and shovel," brought men flocking to the parks.

No arrangements were made to feed these people, but they were fed. Women came from neighboring houses with steaming pots of coffee and bread and butter.

Britain called out territorial troops for anti-aircraft and coast defense work and naval and royal air force reserves continued to report for duty.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD
Madison—It was once said of a politician that he kept his ear so close to the ground that it was always filled with grasshoppers.

Wyngaard

That epigram may justifiably be applied to the heads of the Progressive party machine, who have taken careful soundings in the days since the primary election, and now report themselves as satisfied that the state administration stands in no immediate danger despite the fact that the low Progressive vote may seem to call for alarm signals.

Most important of the reasons, as confided by Progressive political analysts, is the fortuitous—so Progressives call—outcome of the Coalition campaign for the governorship. Had Mr. Henry taken the Republican nomination, Progressives in the statehouse would today be trembling behind their mahogany desks. But he won the Democratic nomination only, which pleases Progressives no end because it leaves a good many thousand New Dealers who expressed themselves for Jerry Fox last Tuesday without a ticket to vote next November.

Progressives regard the Fox vote as the liberal, or Roosevelt vote. It cannot be counted for Henry in November because Henry stands on a Republican platform and is anti-Roosevelt. It obviously cannot be counted for the Republican ticket, whose primary design is to smash the New Deal power in Wisconsin. So it must go to the Progressives as the only liberal outlet remaining. So the Progressives rationalize.

It cannot be denied that this theorizing is plausible. But politics isn't rational, and what happens remains to be seen.

POOR LEADERSHIP
The Coalition effort at last week's primary election revealed many things. Not the least of the revelations is the fact that the leaders of Wisconsin conservative political organizations are alarmingly out of touch with their rank and file membership.

While Henry's showing on the Republican ticket was less than expected, it also demonstrated that the party heads don't know what is going on in the minds of the voters down in the precincts, or if they do know, they have been ignoring it.

This column recalls one day last spring, when the first moves were being made by the Republican state committee for this year's campaign, the tolerant, smiling crowd with which Coalition advocates were greeted at an indifferently attended and ineffectual meeting of the committee. One of the advocates was Elmer R. Honkamp, Eighth district Republican chief. No one disputed his figures. No one challenged his interpretation of the feeling of large segments of the Republican vote. But after his speech the meeting usually went on to other things. Last week, without organization, without money, and with the active opposition of the party generals, a Coalition candidate got more than 70,000 votes on the Republican ballot.

And the Democrats. From the violent and bitter effusions of C. E. Broughton of Sheboygan, headman and pace-setter for Wisconsin Democracy, and the calm, but effective opposition of State Chairman James Corcoran, the non-partisan observer might have concluded that Coalition Democrats were renegades, but that there were too few of them to become alarmed about. And last week Coalitionist Henry was nominated by the Democratic party in Wisconsin, again election party in Wisconsin, again election.

ELECTION NOTES

Politicians may well ponder whether the fact that two out of three voters stayed home on primary day is a rebuke to them. . . . Certainly the nomination of a dead man in Juneau county indicates something. . . . The party which got the most votes spent the most money. . . . Progressives can't explain the nomination of Socialist George Nelson for lieutenant governor. Relatively unknown and with little campaigning, he defeated Olaf Johnson, old-timer, popular, who put on a vigorous campaign and was universally picked to win. . . . Critics predicted last year, when David Sigman's frequent absences from important deliberations of the assembly were much publicized, that his political prospects wouldn't be good this year. A labor organizer, he was defeated by farmer votes in his bid for a senate seat. . . . John Anderson, who had the toughest job in the senate because he always voted first, was among the fatalities. . . . John E. Cashman's lead over George Schneider in the primary in which neither was opposed is said to make him a favorite for November in the Eighth district. . . . Ditto for Frank Keefe over Mike Reilly, Democratic veteran, in the Sixth district. . . . The fact that Fred Zimmerman piled up the heaviest vote of the day in the primary on an old-age pension platform seems incongruous. What conceivable effect can a secretary of state, a state capitol bookkeeper, have on pension legislation? . . . Religion still wields a big influence in state politics, although politicians don't dare talk about it openly. On that basis are Progressives explaining the failure of Tom Amle to show bigger majorities in the industrial districts where he was a heavy favorite. . . . Coalition candidates carried Dane county, mother of the Progressive party and the LaFollette. . . . All parties have a chance to produce some new leadership in the November canvass to replace the ineffectual legislators who were dropped in the primary races. . . . If John Chapple had spent the last two weeks before the primary campaigning he would have been nominated. That from a Progressive who has been looking over election returns for many years.

WHA AND POLITICS

There are several aspects of the confusing status of Governor LaFollette's Wisconsin hydro authority Wisconsin-Fox river development project which are worth recording. One is that the river development scheme is well on the way toward becoming a first class issue for the fall campaign, with evidence that the administration will be on the defensive.

Most significant, although little known, is the part being played by the Wisconsin construction industry in the pro and con discussions of the river project. Closely organized, influential, and heartily respected by the state's politicians because it represents a tremendous slice of the state's popular vote, representatives of the industry have been active in behind-the-scenes maneuverings.

As represented by the Wisconsin Construction Industries committee which is led by J. Harry Greer of Janesville, the industry is considerably less than enthusiastic about Governor LaFollette's desire for a large chunk of Wisconsin's $30,000,000 PWA allotment, and has gone to the trouble of stirring up a strong movement against the governor's plan. The resentment of municipal officials which recently flared up as the result of a fear that the governor would gobble up their allocations is directly traceable to the influence of the construction group, which circarized every city hall in the state.

It is also interesting to learn that the telegram which was dispatched to secretary James LaFollette's PWA advisory committee, made up of contractors and labor representatives, and asking PWA to postpone action on the hydro application until all requests from localities had been passed upon, was slipped over quickly and quietly without the knowledge of the governor.

Green proposed the telegram, although the formal motion was made by Louis Butterfield of Green Bay, a labor leader. At the next meeting of the group Edward Little, the governor's confidential secretary, asked the committee to "cooperate" with the executive in the future.

HINDSIGHT

After an election the cynical observer always finds it easy to enlighten the politicians who wonder how and why it happened. So it is hard to resist the telling of some of the blunders at which a side-liner marvels, including: Mrs. Gertrude Bowler, late Democratic national committeewoman, who asked voters on the eve of the primary election to support Coalition to head off Gov. LaFollette's march to the White House. Julius P. Heil, who after finding a boomerang in his promise to his promise to serve without pay if elected, soon after went to a Progressive town and condemned as incompetent the town's most popular and successful figure, a Republican, who was recently chosen by the LaFollette administration for a high and responsible state job. Edward J. Samp, who allowed his publicity man to try to bludgeon newspaper editors into giving him free space for campaign blurbs on threat of withholding advertising.

Robert K. Henry, who criticized the state code law in a city speech, where code advocates live and do business, when opposition to the price fixing statute comes largely from the rural areas. Jerome Fox, who ignored a questionnaire from the League of Women Voters, one of the most powerful civic organizations in the state. Herman L. Ekern, who allowed himself to be dragged into a public discussion of the theory of monopoly regulation with Mayor Dan Hogan, in which with all due respect to the lieutenant governor, Mr. Ekern was made to look silly by the wily Socialist veteran of Milwaukee.

Sen. F. Ryan Duffy, who continued to assure all and sundry long after it became apparent that the President had no such intentions that Mr. Roosevelt was coming to Wisconsin to give him a hand. W. T. Evjue, who in the fever of his desire to have Ekern nominated, completely recanted his previous frequent laudation of Rep. Amle, and in the last passionate days dismissed Amle as an "agitator," a strange statement from an editor whose own editorial page three years ago gave into the new Progressive organization.

James Corcoran, Democratic state chairman, who allowed himself to be quoted on plans to resign in the middle of a campaign in which his organization was fighting for its life.

Soldiers Little Too Old to Fight Man British Aerial 'Magnet Line'

BY JACK CULMER

London—(AP)—London is planning its hopes of defense in the next war on a line of balloons—hundreds of them that will support a fence of "tethal" cables to render air attacks harmless.

British experts say the ring of balloons, anchored to steel cables, forming a fence around the city, would force enemy planes to stay so high their bombs would be comparatively harmless, and defense planes could fight them off. The fighting part of the barrage is a forest of cables. The gasbags merely serve as supports for that.

The man in the street remains skeptical about "this balloon business." He wonders how the gigantic hydrogen fence would act in a gale. More than one of the experimental bags broke loose. One careened to France, missing up power lines as it passed.

Volunteers Needed
Britain is calling for 5,000 more volunteers to man the balloon barrage. Age limits are set at 38 to 50 so the service will not attract younger men who are fit for more active duty.

The balloons look like the "sausage" observation bags of the World War. They taper to a pointed tail fitted with three fins to keep their heads to the wind. The fins are filled with air blown in through scoops as the craft rises.

A ten-mile radius from the center of London could be hemmed by 500 balloons at 100-yard intervals, officials say.

Mobility is the essential feature. By shifting the barrage, experts say, they could keep bomber pilots guessing. Anti-aircraft searchlights and guns would have a better chance of picking off high-flying enemy planes, and defense fighters would know they needn't look for raiders below balloon level.

Officials discount the danger that radio-controlled, crewless planes might be sent to ram the barrage. Since each plane could destroy only one balloon, they say, this method of attack would be too expensive. But apparently there's no answer to the risk of incendiary bullets aimed at each anchored balloon.

World war pilots found it dangerous to attack balloons, well defended by anti-aircraft artillery and machine-guns. The new balloons have no baskets. Each balloon unit is manned by a crew of ten. It carries a deflating balloon on a truck fitted with gear to help it across ditches and other obstacles, and mounting a drum of cable operated by a power winch. A trailer carries three hydrogen cylinders.

Improvements Welcome
Eight short cables dangle from each balloon so the crew can guide it to earth as the wind winds up the last few feet of tethering cable. A valve cable enables the crew to start deflating the bag as soon as they seize the handling cables. Authorities admit the need for improvements but insist the principle is sound.

The contest was conducted by a soap company, and the display was exhibited at Macy's, New York City, from Sept. 19 to 24. Miss Salberlich, when she made the carving, was in a class taught by Miss Jean Jackson under the supervision of Miss Zuehlke.

143 Persons Convicted Of Breaking Game Laws

A total of 143 persons were convicted of violations of the state hunting, trapping and fishing laws in the state during July, according to the September issue of the Wisconsin Conservation Department Bulletin. Three other cases were dismissed and five lost. There were no arrests in Outagamie county. Waupaca and Oneida counties each had four arrests.

Farmers Ship Cabbage Under Federal Program

With an allotment of 14 tons per acre, Outagamie county cabbage growers are taking full opportunity of the chance to unload part of their huge cabbage crops to the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation.

For the last three weeks they have been busy hauling to the three shipping stations at Shiocton, Bear Creek and Center Valley. Two weeks ago 63 carloads were shipped, last week 77 carloads and this week the total shipment will be 80 carloads. Another large allotment for the county is expected for next week, according to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural department.

The shipping is being handled by a committee of the Appleton Cooperative Cabbage Growers association, which consists of Herman Knorr, Shiocton; Phil Bixby and Joseph Griesbach, Appleton; and Henry Flanagan and Thomas O'Connor, Bear Creek.

Acresages are tabulated and farmers are notified by card from the county agent's office as to the allotment and shipping point for them each week.

The cooperative has engaged loaders at each of the shipping points, Orville Johnson and the Schreyers brothers at Shiocton, Harry Schultz at Center Valley and Dan Flanagan at Bear Creek.

The county's output of cabbage is large this year, despite the large losses caused by continuous rains, and the chance to sell part of the crop to the government is not being overlooked. The market for cabbage this year has been poor, according to growers.

In addition to taking care of Outagamie county, some cabbage is being shipped at the stations by a small number of farmers living in Waupaca, Shawano and Calumet counties. A survey showed a crop of 2,450 acres on which the estimated yield will be about 36,000 tons.

First checks have been distributed on the basis of $4 per ton.

THE CONDUCT OF SMALL COUNTRIES

When the Sudeten question came before the peacemakers at Paris in 1919 the Czechs urged the necessity of leaving the Sudeten lands within their borders because they would provide a natural defense against any invader.

This proposition prevailed and the boundary lines were so drawn. Germany was never consulted. The Sudetens were never consulted. Then the obvious happened.

The Germans in Czechoslovakia refused until 1927 to participate in the government. The cause for this condition cannot be blamed upon Hitler. Berlin at the time was the capital of a democracy, that is if the loose jointed form of government set up by Socialists can be so denominated.

This pride of race is a powerful factor which cannot be ignored. The Sudeten Germans were formerly contented although their land was not within the confines of Germany because it was in the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, the head of which was German.

Neither is the argument of strategic defense that won the day at the peace table worth anything for a small nation. Even with the advantage of the Sudeten mountains the Czechs obviously consider their defense against Germany as impossible.

The inviolability of small nations cannot be built upon fortifications. A powerful enemy can shatter any defense created. Holland, wholly without the semblance of a defense, flat as a pancake, has not been in danger from her neighbors for some centuries. She might have suffered the same fate as Belgium had conquering armies needed her terrain; she might in such a situation have delayed her submission by spending treasures building Maginot lines. But to no ultimate purpose. She keeps a well trained army but her statesmen have concluded that the best policy is to observe the most scrupulous sort of neutrality, and pray.

All the relations existing between Germany and Czechoslovakia certainly do not appear upon the surface. Europe is the center of constant plot and conspiracy. That France and Russia lured the Czechs into a policy of seeming hostility to Berlin and played upon her fears, there can be no doubt. Her statesmen were clever, upright patriots but they were unaccustomed to the wily turnings and twistings of European chancelleries and the apparent heartlessness with which Paris and Moscow could toss an ally to the wolf pack.

Supposing no treaty of defense had been made by the Czechs with these nations—what then? It is obvious that Prague would have fared as well or better besides retaining the hundreds of millions she needlessly spent upon fortifications. She would necessarily have assumed a humble attitude toward Germany; Hitler might rage and storm and threaten her when he was looking for a scapegoat, but at least he would not lead her astray to her own undoing.

Every tragedy of this sort is a fertile field for conjecture since the result under changed conditions can never be known. But the shock with which the Czechs received the news of their desertion gives ground to believe that they relied upon their treaties completely and may have pursued a more defiant policy toward their surly neighbor than had they not been so sure of themselves.

IOWA TO ALABAMA TO WISCONSIN
From the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, News we print:

"Despite the lateness of the season in the river bottoms west Alabama has never presented so much growing corn to the observer as this year, and from the present indications they will have an enormous crop, even though the price here would be only an average one. The government figures are taking so much acreage out of cotton that it is more than any other thing to bring about a larger acreage in corn, and then, too, the constant preaching of the apostles of a balanced agriculture has done some good."

"The only thing now bothering us is what the folks out in Iowa will say. Inasmuch as Iowa has never done much worrying about the South the South needn't worry overmuch about Iowa. The thing that really bothers us is attaining the day when we raise all of the corn which we consume in Alabama and import none at all from Iowa."

But Iowa has something to say. This at least is said by the Atlantic News Telegraph, an Iowa paper:

"We have commented before in these columns concerning the paradoxical agricultural policy which pays cotton planters for not planting cotton, and allows them to grow corn, while at the same time it pays northern farmers not to grow corn, and permits those living where climatic conditions are favorable to grow cotton. This has never made sense to us, and up to the present time we have never heard any satisfactory explanation of this rather astonishing scheme. However, with or without an explanation, Iowa is the loser, for she cannot grow cotton. She is having her market wiped out without receiving any adequate compensation or finding any new market. Instead of building Iowa agriculture, this New Deal policy is tearing it down."

It would seem to us, to continue the line of argument the Administration has started but failed to finish, that if Alabama never buys corn in Iowa and makes its own butter and cheese the Iowa corn farmer and the Wisconsin dairyman will hardly be in a position to buy cotton in Alabama. Why doesn't the administration stimulate more beet sugar raising and maple sugar making in Wisconsin so we won't have to purchase any of the sugarcane grown in Alabama? That question can wait for Mr. Roosevelt's third term. It is enough to know now that the south is to become entirely independent of the corn farmer and the dairyman.

Any policy of government aimed in a workable fashion at improving the condition of the American people in any section of the country will find warm support here. But methods that are limited to pulling the South up by pulling the self-made North down are worse than valueless since they penalize the pioneering spirit, compensate the unfit and the shiftless and in addition make those who have had some measure of success pay out the money to others through taxes in order that their success may be sapped and destroyed.

Here is an instance, however, where we should pay a deserved compliment to the President since we have often adverted to his broken promises. During his first term he said that he was going to "try a little of this, and if it didn't work try a little of that." He has given full measure. He has tried this, that, what, why and wherefore.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

(Mr. Harrison, snatching some vacation, is serving in his own "guise" columnist by reprinting some of the stories out of his newspaper past.—Editor.)

New York—In a world of living people, few persons really live. They move, they talk (rather uninterestingly), they eat, sleep and work. But to be really alive and really to drain the moments to their last drops of life—that's different.

Ray Vir Den is the different kind. He gets around. He meets people. He works hard and plays hard. He has fun. He has probably as wide an acquaintance with important people as any man in town.

His business is advertising. But he might have been a Wall street broker, an opera singer, a boat captain, a playwright, an oil man, a leading man in Broadway shows, a naval officer, a farmer, a clubman, a socialite, or even a henjo player. Indeed, he has been all these things—and has had a world of fun at all of them.

Newspaper publishers ought to swear by Ray Vir Den because his views on advertising are right down their alley. As a buyer of advertising space he has spent millions of dollars for big companies, and his conviction today is that the best advertising medium of all is the daily paper.

It isn't guesswork with Ray Vir Den. One year he devoted a large tobacco company's advertising appropriation to a campaign by radio. Nothing much happened. The next year he spent the same company's advertising appropriation with the daily papers. Phenomenal business followed.

Nothing fazes him. Last year an opera star failed to show up on time for a broadcast Vir Den was conducting for a client. Without the slightest hesitation, Vir Den stepped to the microphone and sang the star's aria himself—from memory. Nobody knew the difference. Some said they never heard the star in such excellent voice!

His greatest pride is his vice presidency of the famous Dutch Treat Club of whose shows he has been the producer for many years.

THINGS I MISS IN MANHATTAN: The music of school bells (and it is music, boys and girls! you'll find out); the neighbor lady, buxom, white-aproned and red-faced from standing over a wood-burning kitchen range, arriving at the back door with a huge berry pie—"I thought you might like it while it's hot—right out of the oven"; all-day suckers, a penny-apiece; Wednesday night choir rehearsal (I'll bet a lot of fellows have sung second tenor back there since my day); preserved crab-apples; key-wind watches (with leather chains).

HUMAN WEAKNESS: Mayor LaGuardia is a well disciplined man, except when the fire bells sound. Then he's off. It's the boy in him. At an important meeting of the Board of Estimate the other day he was informed there was a four-alarm fire in Brooklyn. "Excuse me," shouted His Honor, breaking off debate abruptly and dashing from the room. He grabbed his hat—the hat that always looks too big for him—and was off to the fire.

LaGuardia is probably the busiest mayor the town has had in a quarter of a century. He has yet to take a full-fledged vacation. He contents himself with swift safaris out of town to address an occasional convention.

Raymond Massey, the Canadian-born actor who has the name role in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," tells about a movie he was making in England. The technical director was an elderly man with old ideas. During the making of the picture, the old fellow dropped dead on the set. A young man was assigned to finish the picture.

"You can tell by looking at the picture just where the old man died," said Massey. "Soldiers dash onto the set in old-fashioned uniforms. They dash off in new ones."

It is nice to know that Hollywood has no corner on screwy screening. Massey, incidentally, has been the center of a mild flurry of editorial kibitzing, one of the New York papers having expressed disappointment that the Lincoln role was given to an actor born outside of the United States.

The whole business was rather silly. Broadway owes a considerable debt to Canadian and English talent—Mary Pickford, born in Toronto; Walter Huston, Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, a Canadian, and such English actors as Maurice Evans, John Gielgud, George Arliss, Noel Coward, Gertrude Lawrence and you-can-pick-it-up-from there.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1928

Monday night was the coldest night, 24 degrees, recorded by the government thermometer at Menasha locks so far that season, according to George T. Allanson, locktender.

Mrs. J. T. Purves was elected captain of Circle 12 of the Congregational church at a meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. E. Orblison. Mrs. Frank Spencer was elected assistant captain. First Lieutenants were Mrs. C. Conkey and Mrs. P. L. Kreotzer while Mrs. Eric Madson and Mrs. George Jackson were selected second lieutenants.

Another Appleton High school and Lawrence college football star was to take a fling at professional football, Harold "Pete" Briggs had gone to Portsmouth, Ohio, where he was to try out for a pro team in that city. He ranked as one of the best open field runners at Appleton high and had few peers on the college gridiron.

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Sept. 30, 1913

The golf season at Riverview Country club came to an end Saturday when the finals for the secretary's cup were played. Dr. M. L. Spencer won it over Carl Conkey, 4 up and 3 to play.

George Wolf and family returned from an automobile trip through New London, Wausau, Stevens Point, Waupaca and Weyauwega. They left Appleton Sunday morning.

L. F. Kitter, A. Pfeiffer, Hoffman Bros., Conrad Holzer and A. VanGorp were to attend the state bakers' meeting at Green Bay.

The Women's Bible class was to begin work for the season at the home of Mrs. C. B. Ballard Wednesday.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

FENCES

A goose stood on a barrel at the Fair. For half an hour or more, and no one looked in his direction. . . . But a fence was raised around him, and the public came, amazed. To speak of his attainments and to stare at how a goose behaves when he's uncooked.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY FRESTON GROVER

Washington—If a general war engulfs Europe, the important historical question of its exact opening date may never be answered.

Will history say it began with Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia or Hitler's occupation of the Rhineland in 1936? Franco's challenge to loyalist Spain in that same year? Hitler's occupation of Austria in 1938? Or some memorable date like Chamberlain's visit to Hitler? The historian's problem arises from that strange practice . . . shoot first, and declare war when it suits, if at all.

Civil wars within a nation long have started without any declarations, including the Spanish revolution, and our own war between the states.

Until the turn of the century, a declaration of war was a patriotic thrill. In ancient Rome they gave themselves over to a complete enjoyment of histrionics before the opposing armies fell on each other.

War After Dinner

Emissaries of war were given honor. Great public spectacles greeted them. Plenty of banquets intervened before the head emissary unfurled his toga and politely declared his host was a pain in the neck. Then everybody went home to buckle on his sword.

Today China and Japan are locked in a war a year old, and neither has hinted a declaration of war ever will be made.

In the past half century, the advent of modern war machinery had the effect of outmoding the practice of declaring war. The nation taking the offensive found it almost necessary to surprise the enemy.

Probably the last great war which was formally declared all along the line before hostilities began was the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. Both armies waited for a declaration of war. Even so, the German general staff had gone so far as to map out its mobilizations and army movements in advance.

Germany won, by and large, because of advance preparation.

Then Came The Maine

In our own Spanish-American war in 1898 the cones were caught off base by the sinking of the Maine and was forced to content itself with recognizing on August 25 that a state of war had existed for four days. In this country, congress has to make it legal.

The next big conflagration was the Russo-Japanese war of 1905. A strategic naval battle had been fought and won by Japan's heroic Admiral Togo two days before war was declared.

The World war was little different. True, Austria declared war on Serbia. But the great powers were hiding their strategy and declarations would have given them away. The German army invaded Luxembourg two days before a declaration of war against France. France and Great Britain likewise were moving into battle formation before they got around to formal statements.

When we entered the World war, congress had a difficult time making up its mind, and when it did, on April 6, 1917, the lawmakers decided to recognize the existence of a war that Germany had started against the United States months before.

This change in custom has played havoc with international law built up through centuries. A country declaring war is supposed to have certain belligerent rights, such as legal blockades, and the like. Neutrals have certain rights of free passage on high seas. A violator of these rights is supposed to be subject to damages.

Modern practices seem to have scrambled all that, despite Secretary of State Hull's appeal to reason and lawful procedure. The big objective of a war-bent nation today is always concealed, every invasion must appear to be a defense of national honor.

Your Birthday

"LIBRA"

If September 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 A. M.; from 1:30 to 3:30 P. M.; and from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 A. M.; from 5:30 to 7:30 P. M.; and from 9:30 to 11:30 P. M.

Numerous pleasant surprises are apt to make this an unusually interesting day. Housekeepers need not be surprised if they have anticipated guests, for there is likely to prevail among their friends an urge to make impromptu social calls. Obstetrics, due to numerous people being wedded to their individual opinion, will be the primary cause of many arguments, a great deal of intolerance and much unparadigmatic prejudice. You must maintain a liberal attitude towards everyone you contact, if you wish this day to be peaceful and happy.

It is good judgment for you to give consideration to any plea or plan that might be submitted to you for reviewing purposes. If you are wise you will be just as ready to follow some unwritten law as you are to obey those that are legally recognized. Avoid any form of rough-and-tumble play, for accidents are liable to originate from rough frolicking. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who have set their affections on a certain person, must let selfishness rule their thoughts and actions.

If a woman and September 28 is your birthday, you should find work that will be not only interesting, but congenial to you. You ought to be a most efficient worker, and possess the genius of leadership. Your greatest fault may be that you are unduly suspicious or of an extremely jealous disposition. There are many indications that the time will come when you can enjoy most of the comforts of life. Through office, educational, laboratory or missionary work, writing, music, acting or selling your financial condition may be such as to make you very happy. From all indications your marital outlook is very bright, with plenty of signs that it will be filled with good fortune.

The child born on September 28 requires a happy environment, with plenty of love and congenial companionship, for its proper development. Marked ability, lofty aspirations, help to make

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

RECOVER WHILE YOU WORK

Southern reader reports:

I want to tell you that I appreciate treating me for rupture by the injection method. The word did not come direct from you but through a friend of mine whom you sent to Dr. . . . for some other treatment.

Dr. . . . 's work was entirely satisfactory. I worked all the time at my job in a railroad yard, and although I had to wear my truss continuously while taking treatment, I am now going without it except at my work where I have to do some heavy lifting. The doctor tells me I can remove it entirely in sixty days.

The treatment was practically painless and saved me an operation which was advised by another physician. Again I thank you.

A long time ago this column plumped for radical surgery, thus: "As for alleged cures by injection, special trusses, and similar novelties, the less said the better. These things are untrustworthy; some of them are positively harmful."

operation for hernia is about as risky and a lot more comfortable than having a wisdom tooth extracted—and that is saying a mouthful!"

If I were not utterly hard-boiled I might blush faintly to record that on August 5, 1925, I described in a newspaper health column which up to then was all but endorsed by the A. M. A. itself, a home treatment for hernia in infants, which, as physicians know, generally heals or becomes cured spontaneously or naturally if kept properly reduced and supported. Before that I had described in my column exercises which I believed

" . . . unquestionably prevent the occurrence of hernia in many instances of congenital tendency thereto, but will not cure a frank hernia."

Enough, I wot, enough to show that I was fairly orthodox.

The ambulant or injection treatment of hernia bobbed up in this column first in the summer of 1930 under the diffident title "Is Radical Operation the Only Cure for Hernia?" and Aug. 9, 1931, I advised those with hernia to hold it until I could get something more definite to tell about the ambulant treatment, but meanwhile if some reputable physician purposed to use the injection method by all means go ahead with it, only make certain the doctor is of unquestionable professional standing and not a shady "specialist" or quack who canvasses for customers for "non-surgical" treatment.

The ambulant or injection treatment of hernia is as truly surgical as the radical operation, and the wise layman will give a wide berth to any charlatan who seeks to catch unwary customers that way.

Injection treatment is now the method of choice in a considerable proportion of all cases of hernia. To cure hernia by this method requires at least as great skill on the many children born on this date outstanding successes.

If a man and September 28 is your natal day, if you avail yourself of your power to do good, and temper justice with mercy, your personal affairs are likely to prosper. As an engineer, geographer, scientist, chemist, lawyer, doctor, actor or author fame and prosperity are likely to be your well-earned rewards.

Answer—No. It is harmless if you like it.

3rd Power Could Act as Mediator In Czech Dispute

United States or Italy Logical Choices for Job, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Mediation may well be the next step in the Czechoslovakian dispute. Whenever two protagonists get into a deadlock from which retreat by one or the other involves sacrifices of prestige, the custom is for some friendly third power to intercede and thus make it easier for mutual agreement to be effected. Who shall the mediator be? The two possible mediators are President Roosevelt, representing a nation friendly to both sides of the dispute, Premier Mussolini, who, while ostensibly an ally of Germany, has every reason for wanting to maintain peace in Europe. Mr. Roosevelt's appeal for peace may have been a subtle bid for mediation. Clearly, when a neutral power comes forth with a suggestion that specifically mentions the existing treaties which provide for settlement of disputes by pacific means and when the neutral power is herself a signatory to the treaty providing for pacific settlement, it requires no stretch of the imagination for Britain and France or for Germany to consider the United States as a possible mediating influence.

What seems to be at issue is a matter of evacuating the Sudeten territory which will be satisfactory to Germany and to Czechoslovakia and a machinery for negotiating further guarantees once the formula for evacuation is decided. The situation is made to order for an alert mediating government, provided there is really a sincere desire on both sides for the avoidance of war.

Hitler's Speech

Herr Hitler's speech, with its dynamic phrases, did not add or subtract from the situation as viewed here. Someone has to give way in order that a peace formula may be consummated, and some outside influence may possibly be of avail between now and Oct. 1 in assuring the removal of the big stumbling block—the evacuation plan.

Unquestionably, Czechoslovakia and the British and French would accept America's mediation. Would Herr Hitler? He hardly could refuse without difficulty if the others accept. The responsibility for making war is not an easy one for any nation to bear, and governments customarily try to give the impression that they have done everything to prevent war. Mediation is an historic device, often called "good offices," and it is no retreat for a government engaged in a critical controversy to accept mediation.

It will be recalled that, in August, 1914, President Wilson made a tender of good offices on behalf of the United States government, but it came too late. Maybe Mr. Roosevelt's appeal for peace, though not a mediation offer, has come too late also, but Americans generally will be glad for the sake of the record that he made it anyhow.

Mediators

The mediation of Premier Mussolini might appeal more to Hitler than that of a country as far away as the United States, especially since American mediators would require so much time to get into action. The Italian dictator has a basic sympathy with the Hitler aims, but, on the other hand, if the German dictator wants to find a formula for backing down which will not hurt him with his own people, he can make a grandiose peace gesture and agree to Italian mediation.

The formal initiation of negotiations through the auspices of a power friendly to Germany and to the British and French would be tantamount to casting the die for peace. Such mediation will come only if, behind all the bluff and bluster of the last 10 days, there is a genuine desire to avoid war. The belief prevails here that none of the nations wants to risk war and that the bluffing will go to the very limit, even to the point perhaps of sending German troops to occupy the Sudeten area, by which time possibly the intervention of a mediating influence might be more acceptable to Hitler, and then arrangements to settle the various points could proceed in more leisurely fashion.

To America, the mediation job might be distasteful because it would involve cries from some isolationists that the United States was becoming entangled. But the task of mediation is one which no government of standing rejects if both sides ask it. The United States has mediated many a dispute in the world and has done so successfully. There are risks, of course, in accepting a mediation role, but, if it contributes to world peace, most Americans will rejoice and President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull will be justly praised for their timely intervention in such a humanitarian endeavor.

Fail in Effort To Remove Brown County's Attorney

LaFollette Dismisses Complaint—Reynolds Heads Progressive Campaign

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Governor LaFollette disclosed today that he has dismissed a complaint contained in a petition filed with him several months ago demanding the removal of District Attorney Clarence J. Dorschel of Brown county for alleged failure to perform the duties of his office. The governor said he acted on the recommendation of special commissioner John W. Reynolds, who was appointed to investigate the charges and who held public hearings in Green Bay recently.

Nothing except the bare statement that the matter has been dismissed was available at the governor's office, but it was learned that the fact that Dorschel is not a candidate for reelection to the prosecutor's office was a contributing factor in the decision to dismiss the petition without action.

The governor had originally been asked to oust Dorschel because "law and order have completely broken down in Brown county." John W. Reynolds of Green Bay, member of the Progressive state central committee, friend of the LaFollette and a former Progressive attorney general is stated to be the next Progressive state chairman, it was said in authoritative circles in the capital last night.

At the same time it became definitely known that Reynolds will come to Madison next week to take personal and direct charge of the Progressive party's state campaign this fall, which party leaders are beginning to admit will be the most difficult which it has faced since its organization four years ago.

Reynolds will direct Progressive party work from the new NPA headquarters in the capital city, and will steer the machine which hopes to elect Governor LaFollette, an entire state ticket, a Progressive majority in each house of the legislature and to collect enough votes to center the attention of the nation on Wisconsin's third party.

Reynolds is a former Brown county district attorney, one of the best known of the elder leaders of the party, and was elected attorney general twice, in 1926 and 1928. Earlier this fall he was frequently rumored to be a probable candidate for high office this fall.

Regular State Operating Expenses 50 Per Cent Higher Than in 1935

Madison—Three successive years of increased spending have brought regular state operating expenses to a level 50 per cent higher than in the 1935 fiscal year," according to a summary of state general fund disbursements made by the Wisconsin Taxpayers alliance. "The increase in state operating expenses from the general fund in the fiscal year just ended on June 30, 1938, was $5,411,000, or 12.3 per cent higher than operating expenditures in the 1937 fiscal year. Operating expenditures in the 1937 fiscal year were in turn $8,208,000, or 22.9 per cent higher than in 1936, and 1936 fiscal year operating outlays were $3,429,000, or 10.6 per cent higher than for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1935."

Regular state operating expenses included all disbursements made from the general fund for the support of regular state activities. State aids, transfers, refunds, and transactions made by the state as an agent of political subdivisions are not included, since they are not thought of as regular state operating expenses.

Outlays for highways and education, excluding state aids, were the principal items of increase in operating expenses," the bulletin went on to say. "Highway expenditures in 1938 exceeded those of the previous year by more than $3,000,000 and accounted for about three-fifths of increased expenditures in 1938. Expenditures for the University of Wisconsin, which were $1,300,000 higher than in 1937, were the major cause of the $1,600,000 increase in education expenses."

Curb Expenditures: Reduction in expenditures for major departments such as the executive department, state treasury, industrial commission constituted the largest expenditure decrease between 1937 and 1938, amounting to $328,000.

"State aids, including relief, were 7 per cent higher in 1938 than in the preceding fiscal year," the Alliance pointed out. "This increase is principally due to increases in social security aids but in part is caused by an increase in educational aids through payments under the new high school aid law. Since 1935, total aids excluding relief, increased 66.5 per cent, also due principally to increases in social security aids."

Six Blind Students at U. of W. Ask No Favors in Scholastic Competition

Madison—Among nearly 12,000 students at the University of Wisconsin are six young men and a girl, all blind, who ask no favors in competition with their classmates for scholastic honors. Four of the group stand among the highest scholastically, and all the others have obtained grades equal to or above the average. Their handicap will be further reduced this year, university officials said, as a result of an NYA appropriation providing them with readers.

Two of the group, Evelyn Smith, of Milwaukee, and Clare Finch, of Antigo, make their way about the campus with the aid of "seeing eye" dogs, especially trained for them at the Morristown, N. J. dog institute. Miss Smith is believed the first blind co-ed ever enrolled at the university. She will major in English.

Reino Perala, 19, of Maple, Wis., will gather at 6 o'clock Friday evening.

George E. Johnson and Carl W. Holstrom are co-chairmen of the drive and will be aided by H. H. Helble, chairman of the membership committee. A motion picture on the activities of the Y. M. C. A. will be shown at each of the meetings.

First Course Salads

Are you tired of soup or a juice for the first course of dinner? Then serve a salad first.

Out of the west and southwest came the custom of starting off dinner with a tart and peppery salad. It is all around the country and no longer do guests think the hostess made a mistake when they see small platefuls of salad on the service plate when they sit down to dinner. This business of serving an appetizing salad as first course for luncheon or dinner, adds color charm to the table, zest to the meal, and simplicity to the serving. Rich, sweet mixtures are taboo. I hope the following tempting recipes for salad starters will help you.

Fruit Salad

1 large cantaloupe
1 cup diced
1 cup canned
2 fresh peaches, 1 cup canned peeled and sliced
1 cup canned
peaches, sliced
Chill all the fruits thoroughly. If you use canned fruits be sure to drain them well. Cut the cantaloupe in slices, remove rind, and place one ring on crisp lettuce leaf on each salad plate. Combine the other fruits and fill ring. Garnish with mayonnaise and maraschino cherries if desired. Serves 6.

Parents and Teachers Wise to Work Together

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Why didn't the teacher tell me that he was going to school without combing his hair and cleaning his nails instead of giving him a bad mark? Now it is on his record card. How does she think I feel? The minute she found that he was not properly combed and washed she should have called me on the telephone. Instead she gives him a D in personal cleanliness."

There are some things that a teacher cannot be expected to do. Seeing that a child is properly bathed and combed and polished for school in the morning is one of them. Surely a boy of twelve ought to take care of himself in this respect, and surely his mother should look him over before he leaves in the morning. Boys of this age must have a little pride about personal cleanliness and as he must attend to himself at home, home would seem to be the place for the prodding. The teacher does her full share when she suggests to the boy that he is not in form for school.

As to calling the home on the telephone no teacher can be expected to do that unless in emergency. And the emergency should be plain. If teachers used the telephone to report that children were not as clean, or as bright, or as good, as they ought to be, mothers would soon leave home. Home has its duties as well as rights and sending children to school in form ready for work, seems to be a duty.

What can a parent expect from a teacher? First, I think, that the teacher go to work in good health, good humor, good form generally. Then, that the teacher be interested in the general progress of the pupil. If he does his work to a decent standard, the teacher should be ready to praise and encourage him; if he falls below that the teacher should by all means in his power, try to strengthen his failure, wipe out his weakness. It is only when the teacher must confess failure in his own field, that he appeals to home for help.

What kind of help should a teacher expect to get from home? If a child is failing and the teacher has exhausted all resources to no avail he has the right to expect that the parents will have the child examined by a competent authority and present the report to the teacher to enable him to work intelligently with the child.

Asking a parent to teach a child, to coach his backwardness, to make him behave in school, is rarely the effective way. Parents have the right to expect the teacher to do the teaching. He is trained for that work and paid for it. He should do

Some defenders bear a rather startling resemblance to mice. In fact, I am being unkind to the mice in this analogy. When mice are caught in a trap, their frantic scurrying about is understandable because there is no escape for them. The defender, however, often does the same scurrying when actually he could push a door and saunter blithely out of the trap. East, in today's hand, could hardly qualify as a Houdini.

4 spades Pass Pass Pass

South's opening two spade bid was justified by the fact that he held five honor tricks (including the plus values of the heart queen and diamond jack) and only four and one-half losers by the most pessimistic count.

West opened the heart king and continued with the ace. Declarer ruffed the second round, drew two rounds of trumps, and then, for want of a better play, laid down the ace, king, and jack of diamonds. East won the third round with the diamond queen and gloomily accepted the fact that he was in an end play. Obviously, he could not return a heart without affording declarer a ruff and a discard since dummy still had a trump and now was void of hearts. This left only clubs as an exit and, probably with a resigned feeling, East cashed the club ace and then led the seven spot. Perhaps he hoped that declarer, if he held the club king, would be "fooled" as to the position of the queen, but declarer had no choice in the matter; he had to duck to the second club lead as the one reasonable chance of fulfilling the contract. Dummy's jack won and it was all over.

Considering that the dummy had no entry, declarer had played the hand as well as possible, but the fact remained that he should have been defeated and undoubtedly would have been if East had been less mouse-like. East, after being thrown on lead with the diamond queen, had been right in his observation that only a club return was conceivable, but his selection of the ace followed by a low club was scarcely the best solution. The correct return was the club queen! Nothing but logic was necessary to its selection. If by any chance West had the club king, the queen lead would be on a par with the ace lead. But if the club king was in declarer's hand, where it certainly figured to be, the lead of the queen was the only one that might (and would) have a satisfactory result. Only by this lead could East retain the semblance of a tenace over dummy's club jack. Of course, if declarer happened to have the ten spot as well as the king, there was nothing to be done about it, but there was a very good chance that West had the ten-nine or the ten-eight of clubs.

Note how this would work out. Declarer must cover the club queen or concede two club tricks on the spot. After he covers, however, he is helpless. If he leads the six of clubs, West can play any card and North's jack loses to East's ace. West's ten spot then takes the setting trick. If declarer leads the club nine after winning with the king, West, of course, covers with the ten, forcing the jack, and the eight spot then becomes the master card. I recommend that my readers study this and other "escape" plays.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

When mother was a mere girl, friends were just as timid as they are today, in calling your attention to the common social offense—the "unsweet breath."

Young ladies were warned not to be guilty of this social sin in the most delicate of ways. Books entitled "Advice to Ladies" were handed them slyly, or left conspicuously on their counterpane. In the protection of their bedroom walls they would read marked passages such as these:

"The breath should be watched lest it become offensive. Unfortunately it is one of the troubles which we may not be aware of, as our friends may not feel at liberty to inform us of the difficulty. Offensive breath may arise from the stomach, the teeth, the lungs, or catarrhal affection of the throat and nose."

"Unquestionably the best remedy for bad breath is a system of diet and treatment that shall remove the cause. As a temporary expedient, when offensive breath arises from a peculiar food or drink which has been partaken of, a few grains of coffee, or cassia buds, cloves, cardamom seeds or anise, may be used; although if the breath is very strong these will not always prove effective. It is better to remove the cause."

"The following remedies for offensive breath are recommended by those who have the experience in testing the matter:

Powdered sugar 1 ounce
Vanilla 1 ounce
Powdered charcoal 1 ounce
Powdered coffee 11 ounces
Gum arabic 1 ounce

"Make into pellets of 18 grains each and take six a day."

"Disagreeable breath arising from decay or secretions about the teeth may be removed by the following:

Rosewater 1 ounce
Permananganate of Potash 1 grain
Rinse the mouth every three hours."

Still they wanted to get down to the root of things, just as we do today so prescription for stomach lozengers were passed from one to another. This one was recommended as being "beneficial for the teeth, and effective in removing the acidity of the stomach."

"Take of gum arabic 5 drachms; vanilla sugar, 3 drachms; chlorate of lime, 7 drachms, and mix with water to a stiff paste. Roll and cut into the ordinary sized lozenge, and eat six each day."

There they are, untried recipes of another day. Some oldsters may chuckle over them as they read, while younger beauties might realize what arduous hours went into beauty then by comparison with today! Can you imagine making your own medicine?

Newer methods for keeping sweetly feminine are in my leader "Don'ts of Careful Grooming." Send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for it. Address me at this paper.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Here is a case of interest to every adult, and especially to those who are married. If you wish to avoid divorce, be sure to send for the bulletin described today. It is invaluable.

CASE L-126: Lela K., aged 38, presents a problem I have never discussed in this column.

"Three years ago I got married, she began, "but for several months before our wedding we would occasionally drive to a small town 100 miles distant to spend the weekend with my husband's parents."

"About this time I heard some unpleasant gossip about us. Some women acquaintances began to say that we went away for clandestine weekends."

"I can truthfully say, Dr. Crane, that there was nothing improper or wrong in our behavior. But for the three years since then my life has been miserable."

"I finally had a talk with the ringleader of this gossip group and tried to tell her the truth. I was patient and kind, but it seems it just made her worse."

DIAGNOSIS:

People who engage in gossip are often in the same boat with those who patronize burlesque shows, pornographic pictures and salacious French novels.

For gossip obtain an indirect sex thrill out of telling stories that deal with immoral events. They don't dare, as a rule, indulge in risque stories in polite society, for they would be looked down upon.

But if they lift their eyebrows and furtively talk about Lela's leaving town over the weekend with her fiancé, they think they have escaped censure for being sex-minded themselves, but still can indulge their secret hunger for salacious tidbits.

What Do Hungry People Think Of?

As Sigmund Freud aptly pointed out many years ago, when we are hungry we dream of food or that which satisfies our hunger. A famished man dreams at night and daydreams by day of tempting viands.

But a person who is completely filled with a good dinner or Thanksgiving feast, isn't interested in talking about roast turkey or pumpkin pie.

In a similar manner, people who are unsatisfied in the matter of love and affection, are inclined to dwell upon sexual subjects. Thus, the burlesque show patron as well as the gossip are both indicating to a psychologist that they either aren't married, or else receive an insufficient amount of love.

Are men, or women, regarded as being more predisposed to gossip? Most of you will answer "women." And you can see the reason, for women are less likely to be sexually satisfied.

Make Your Marriage Perfect

From my extensive experience with adult patients, I think I am being fairly conservative when I say that at least 50 per cent of wives obtain very little if any physical pleasure out of marital relations.

This fact is a criminal indictment of our generation! And it is the primary cause of most divorces. I have previously told you readers that a sexually adjusted couple rarely gets a divorce.

Almost all of the reasons cited for divorce, such as mental cruelty, selfishness, drunkenness, etc., are directly or indirectly a smoke screen to cover lack of sexual compatibility in marriage.

It is almost an impossibility to break up a marriage where the couple are sexually compatible. The realization of this driving force in marriage relationship is why she keeps worrying about this gossip. Send for my bulletin on "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing self-addressed envelope with 6c postage thereon.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

CHIFFON IN THE FALL?

Dear Mrs. Post: I'm going to be married early in November and have been looking around in the stores for wedding dress ideas. They tell me that chiffon, which I want to wear and which I think would be lovely in fall colors for my attendants, is not worn at a fall wedding. Do you think I am foolish to go ahead and have chiffon worn? Moreover, note that you have advised an autumn bride not to wear summer material.

Answer: I don't think it is a question of custom, but of climate. The bride who asked about thin materials lives in a city on the Great Lakes. Your letter is from the South, therefore chiffon would be lovely at no matter what season of the year. On a cold early winter day in a northern state thin materials look not only leftover, but poor and sleazy, just as heavy wint' materials are hot and stuffy and unbearable in the South, or anywhere on a hot day in early summer.

They Gave Me the Same Book

Dear Mrs. Post: I am convalescing from an illness and several of my friends have been kind enough to send me books. Three friends have sent me copies of the same book. Should I tell them about this, or shall I just write and thank them and say nothing, or could I telephone the store and ask to have two of them exchanged? My name was not written in any of them—they were just as they came and I even have the wrapping paper.

Answer: Certainly telephone the store. Say that you have received three copies of the same book, and ask them if they would be kind enough to exchange two of them for other books. If you can name two books you would like to read, so much the better, but if you can't, the book-store clerk will be glad to suggest a few of the especially recommended books to you to choose from. But in thanking your friends, it would be best to say

Husband Should Aid in Training of Children

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—We have two young children. When I correct their English and their manners my husband resents it and insists that they will outgrow their faults and that, anyway, no child should be heckled about what it does. I do not feel that simple corrections, lovingly made, should be considered heckling, but I am very anxious to do what is right by the children and would like your views on this matter.

MRS. A. L. V.

Answer:

You are entirely right in correcting the children's manner, and mode of speech, because they are at the habit-forming time of life and the way they learn to talk and to do things now will stamp them as cultured or uncultured to their dying day.

No matter what a veneer of education and sophistication we acquire, later in life, our early training breaks through it in times of stress. A famous orator once told me that when he got swept away by his own eloquence he always said "git," because he had said it as a child.

And not long ago I had as a dinner partner a man who had been honored all over this country and Europe for his learning, but he still manipulated his knife and fork as if they were agricultural implements, as he had been permitted to do in his infancy.

Many people, like your husband, hold to the optimistic theory that if you will let children alone they will outgrow their faults and automatically turn from being little savages into polished, elegant men and women of the world. Never was there a more baseless belief. The habits we acquire in childhood stick to us almost as closely as our own epidermis, and later on, when we try to rid ourselves of them, the process is almost as painful as being skinned alive.

That is why it is so important that children should be taught good table manners, to speak correctly and to be courteous and considerate of others, all the little niceties of observance that we lump under the head of good manners, from the very cradle. It saves them not only from having to make themselves over, but gives them an ease and poise that are a letter of introduction wherever they go.

To do this requires that a mother should do a certain amount of what her husband calls heckling, for telling a child once to do a thing makes no impression upon him. It is only after you have told little Johnny ten thousand times not to talk with his mouth full, to take off his hat when he comes in the house, not to use double negatives and not to mispronounce his words that you finally turn him into a well-mannered little gentleman who speaks correctly.

But it takes line upon line and precept upon precept and "don't" upon "don't" to do it, and it is what turns mothers old before their time, unless the fathers will lend a hand at the job.

Dear Dorothy Dix—For sixteen years I have been a good and faithful wife, but in the last month I have fallen desperately in love with another woman's husband. He has three fine sons and I have a lovely little daughter of 15. This man and his wife have been our friends for twelve years, and during all of this time we have not been attracted to each other. Now suddenly out of a clear sky comes the realization that we love each other. When I am with him it is heaven on earth; parted, it is hell. We have met clandestinely, but the realization that things can't go on like this is driving me toward a nervous breakdown. He says he will do what I think best, but honestly I don't know what is best. Shall we take our love illicitly or shall we make a clean breast of it and face the music? Either course will wreck two happy homes and bring disgrace on four Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.

Archie Lumsden, myself, Hugo's friends.

Rene Geiss, man behind a murder plot, who is trying to get rid of me.

Yesterday: Venner is murdered, and a wrench and wallet planted in my room. I hide the evidence under a tile in the hall.

Chapter 32

MANY CURIOUS FACTS

"Mr. Venner and I spoke of London," I told the examining magistrate. "He was a very homesick man."

The judge of instruction pursed his lips, looked at me sharply, from under lowered brows, starting like a cat about to pounce. "And no incident occurred during this interesting conversation?" he inquired. "Nothing that struck you as out of the ordinary?" You entered this room, you sat and conversed, you took your leave?"

A warning bell rang in my brain. Something—I couldn't tell what—whispered that a lot depended on my answer to that question, that some carefully laid trap was about to be sprung if I didn't watch my step. They were all eying me, silent, wary, expectant, and I hesitated, racking my brains; and then, as I looked from one to the other, I caught the eye of the stout, cheerful-looking fellow on the commissaire's right, Fleuriot, the man from Marseilles, and saw him give a slight, reassuring nod—a nod that said, "Carry on, I'm on your side."

I did as I wanted to. There was something in my quick thinking, but obviously he could have no knowledge of what I had discussed with Venner. And then, suddenly, I guessed.

"There was one incident," I said, speaking slowly and picking my words. "Mr. Venner had a heart attack just before I left—I think speaking of London had been a trifle agitating, and I understand his heart was weak. He asked me to tell him some drops from the table beside his bed, and just after I had brought them, he thought he heard a sound on the balcony outside his bedroom window and told me to go and have a look."

"You actually went out on the balcony?" said Mr. Fleuriot encouragingly.

"Yes," I answered. "I had a good look at the balcony, but there was no one there."

"That proves nothing except that he is clever," the judge remarked, and then to me: "Now we come to the rest of the evening. You say you spent it with Monsieur Stern? You have other witnesses I suppose?"

"Naturally," I retorted. "Miss Ada Stern, and Mr. Dunning, an American friend."

"And after dinner you came back to the hotel? At what time?"

"At five minutes to ten," I said. "But the hotel gates were already shut." I had already decided that, as far as my use of the key went,

Old Gardener Says:

There is great variety among the lilies, and some very good kinds are too small for planting in the perennial border. They are more adapted to rock gardens, to the beauty of which they add color and unusual charm. Probably the so-called coral lily, Liliun tenuifolium, is the best rock garden variety because it is small and yet strong and erect. The dwarf forms of Liliun elegans are larger and a little more difficult to handle, but look well among strong growing perennials in the rock garden, combining well, for example, with Cerastium tomentosum, which has gray-green foliage. Care must always be taken, however, to prevent smothering the bulbs in the rock garden.

There must be no attempt at concealment.

The judge raised his eyebrows. "The gate was locked; then how did you get in, pray?"

"Oh, said I, 'I had a key. I got it from the late chasseur, two days ago, with the housekeeper. Will tell you all about that—and it got lost, but it turned up again. Here it is.' I threw it on the table."

He glanced at it indifferently. "Then," he said gently, "you have no witness as to what time you came in?"

"Do you want one?" I asked dryly.

"I want more from you than that, Mr. Lumsden," he retorted. "I want an explanation for many curious facts. First, the fact that your fingerprints and yours alone, have been found inside and outside the shutters of this window; second, the fact that your fingerprints are the only ones on the medicine-bottle."

Three important church events are on the docket for this week, the first being the World Fellowship Institute today at First Congregational church, under the auspices of Interdenominational Council of Church Women. Special speakers include Mrs. Stewart Scrimshaw, Milwaukee, prominent club woman of Wisconsin; the Rev. Harry L. Harp of the Milwaukee County Ministerial association; Mrs. Edwin Kinney, Chicago, national secretary of the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission society; Mrs. J. J. The sixty-fifth annual state convention of Woman's Christian Temperance Union will open Wednesday at Emmanuel Evangelical church and continue for three days. While most of the sessions will be held at the Evangelical church, the banquet Wednesday night will take place at First Methodist church and the evening meeting Thursday will be at First Congregational church. Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president, will be the speaker Thursday night, and Miss Helen Byrnes, general secretary of Youth Temperance council, will speak at the banquet Wednesday night.

On Friday the Social Union of First Methodist church will sponsor a wedding gown pageant in which every decade in United States history from 1812 will be represented by a gown of that period. The event will be held in the main auditorium of the church, and a musical background will be played on the organ as the models appear.

the water-carafe, and the glass; third, the fact that, apart from the man Amedee, who is an honest fellow and has a good record, you were the last person to see Monsieur Venger alive."

"Vowing Vengeance"
He stood up suddenly, his eyes sharp and keen as gimlets boring into mine.

"Shall I tell you the truth?" he said softly. "You came here, an unexpected guest, because you were in need of money, because you knew some guilty secret of Monsieur Venger's past life, some secret that he would pay well to have you silent about. You disclosed your knowledge to him in the morning and gave him until night to make his decision. He sent for you and there took place an interview so stormy that he was afflicted with a heart-attack. He refused your exorbitant demands and you departed, vowing vengeance. Then, in the silent hours of the night, you returned to your wretched victim and brutally murdered him, taking what money you could find. You are not aware, I suppose that his wallet is missing?"

Now that the storm had broken, I was conscious only of a queer relief at strain relaxed, and an immense thankfulness that I had mentioned the medicine I had given the old man and the excursion to the balcony, for if I had not, those damning fingerprints would have been doubly incriminating.

"Just a minute," I said quietly. "Am I to understand, Monsieur le juge, that you accuse me of murdering Mr. Venger?"

He shook his head. "I make no accusations—as yet," said he. "I reconstruct the crime, as I am at liberty to do."

"It seems to me," I said "that in your previous reconstruction you've omitted two important points; first,

Hanna, pastor, spoke on the subject, "Heigh Ho!"

The Rev. F. C. Reuter spoke at First English Lutheran church on the theme, "The Sure Word," while at St. John Evangelical and Reformed church the Rev. A. Guenther preached on "The Growth Within and Without."

"Reality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following is a passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God creates all forms of reality. His thoughts are spiritual realities. The scriptures imply that God is all-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the divine mind and his ideas. . . . Man, made in His likeness, possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth."

man, but understand, you must not leave the hotel."

"I understand," I told him gratefully. I dressed, and made my way rather dismally down the stairs, wondering how I was going to get through the interminable hours that lay before me, and still more how I could get in touch with Hugo. But as my foot touched the bottom step, I heard his voice calling my name.

"Archiel!" he shouted. "What the devil have you been up to, and what's all this going on here?" I caught him by the shoulders and swung him round in the direction of Amedee's pantry. I shut the door, and told him my story. As I finished he heaved a sigh. "Well," said he, "that finishes it. You pack your traps, my lad, and come straight home with me."

"You forget," I suggested mildly, "that as a suspected murderer I'm not allowed to leave this hotel." "Well, at least, I'm going right away to the Vice-Consul to get the name of a good criminal lawyer."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," I retorted. "It'll be time enough for that when they accuse me. Let's take it that I lie low for awhile and you carry on without me. After all I can always let you know if I'm in any sort of a jam."

"And how will you do that?" he demanded sourly. I thought for a minute. "There's Amedee," I said. "I could trust him to take a message without tipping off the police."

I broke off short, for the object of my commendation had poked his head cautiously round the door. "Monsieur," he said in a rusty whisper, "a word if you please—about the dog, Lulu?"

"He's not dead?" I asked, startled, for the poor brute had for the moment slipped from my memory.

"No, no," said he, "but the Mees has just called me to give me orders to have him destroyed immediately, without delay."

"The deuce she has!" said I, and whistled softly. "Now, I wonder why?"

Hugo looked at me meaningfully. "You say the dog was present at the murder?" he queried dryly. "He was, in effect, knocked on the head by the murderer. Isn't it conceivable that he might, if he recovers, recognize the man who did it?"

"I believe you're right," I swung round on Amedee. "Listen friend," I said. "Tell the Miss that you are carrying out her orders. The dog will be destroyed tonight and buried in the garden if necessary; you can dig a grave to add a touch of local color—but instead get him carried up to the top of the lane some time after dark—say about nine thirty." I turned to Hugo.

"Will that suit you?" "Admirably," said he. (Copyright, 1938)

More Than One Editor Booted the Maine Story

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Gratifying a long-suppressed desire to use the word "apocryphal," I related recently a folktale of journalism in St. Louis about an editor who unaccountably misjudged the importance of the bulletin on the sinking of the Battleship Maine, stuffed the story away deep inside the paper and, like a religious penitent retired to a proofreader's cell for the rest of his professional life.

The late Otto Floto, of the Denver Post, often would write a long story just to work up to the point of using a double-dome word, and newspapermen within his radius enjoyed reading to him as he circled, feinted and moved in for the kill which usually occurred in the last paragraph but one. His method was ceremonious, like that of a bullfight. His colleagues enjoyed reading the old master's preliminary cape work, and when at last he would come out with hedonistic, irrefragable or cacophony they would throw down the paper and not bother to give attention while the attendants dragged off the still-warm carcass of the vanquished word.

I didn't really think my story was apocryphal, for it used to be told familiarly by many of the veterans around the old St. Louis press club, but I knew there would never come a better chance to use that word, and after all these years in the business I did want to win my letter.

And now comes a note from Robert Hammond Murray indicating that this tragic error occurred twice on the same night. Mr. Murray relates that an editor of the Rochester, N. Y. Democrat and Chronicle also put the sinking of the Maine inside the paper.

"Our paper received the Sun or Laffan wire service, which this man loved as much as he despised the A. P.," says Mr. Murray. "Along about 8 p. m. my friend would get his schedule from Laffan, lay out his first page, pretty like and typographically balanced to a T, and after that nothing but the assassination of McKinley or Queen Victoria could make him change it. Well, this night I was on the long watch and my friend was reading his book and waiting for 30."

He Told The Foreman
To Jam It On Page 2

"He erupted and I drifted over to ask why. He shoved over the A. P. bulletin, under a Washington date. The Laffan wire was still open so he pushed open the side of the window that gave into the operator's coop and said, 'Ask 'em if they've got anything about this.'"

"Not a word, they say," reported the man on the Laffan wire. "My friend swore horribly and said that if he were the boss of the Associated Press he would fire the man who sent that bulletin first thing to morrow. I said there might be something in it, as the A. P. usually didn't go off half-cooked, but he wagged his head and was still cursing when both wires gave good night."

"Bill Lyndon, the foreman waddled in from the composing room and asked, 'Shall I close her up?' My friend scrawled a one-line head on the bulletin and said, 'Jam this in on number 2 or 3 if you can find room,' dumped his pipe, reached for his hat and called it a day."

German Editor Didn't Worry About His 'News'
"Unfortunately, our opposition, the Herald, bannered the bulletin that morning. My friends reported for duty at 7 p. m. Next night as usual and approximately 2 minutes and 36 seconds later he severed his connection with the Rochester, N. Y. Democrat and Chronicle."

This treatment represents one school of thought in the handling of news. Exactly contrary was the attitude of an editor of a German daily, a client of the old United news. The German paper received only the high spots and those by telephone. One night there came a flash reporting the death of President Harding or a story of similar

About 35 classified ad men from all parts of the state and representing both daily and weekly newspapers attended the meeting. A committee was named to select the time and place for the next gathering which probably will be next fall, Arthur said.

The organization was formed to interest all newspapermen, especially weekly papers, in the possibilities of classified advertising. The annual meetings will be a clearing place for problems and will give the advertising men a chance to exchange ideas.

Harry Gwaltney, advertising manager of the Milwaukee Journal, led a forum discussion during the afternoon session yesterday. He showed delegates how to develop a successful classified section, answered questions and discussed technical details concerning make-up, the kind of type to use and the division of subject matter.

L. Davis, general manager of the Appleton Post-Crescent, welcomed delegates to Appleton following the noon luncheon at the Con-way hotel and outlined the methods of his newspaper.

War Inevitable Unless Wrongs of 1918 are Righted

Professor Tells Students Conflict Will Not Start This Week

There will not be a general European war at the end of this week but war is inevitable unless the wrongs of 1918 are righted, Richard Cummings, assistant professor of history at Lawrence college, told students during convocation in Memorial chapel this morning.

Professor Cummings said he believed there is a ray of hope in what Hitler did not say in his momentous speech yesterday. "After all, he could have said, 'we march tonight,' and the longer he refrains from aggression, the more prepared his non-sympathizers will be," Professor Cummings said. "Germany does not want war. None of Europe wants war but they talk as if it is inevitable."

The speaker, who a few days ago returned from a summer in Europe, attempted to look at the situation with our own Declaration of Independence in mind. In Europe there is a sense of futility in preserving individual liberty, he said. England has made provisions in an attempt to preserve free speech and individual rights but in Germany you find the attitude that the American type of liberty is a selfish ideal.

"It is admitted that Hitler has done many despicable things, especially in the case of the Jews, and many of the Germans are sorry for this, but Hitler is great and the destiny of Germany is in his hands so they work for him knowing that he really has raised the standard of living and that national liberty of the state has been his program," he stated.

The speaker said that the standard of living cannot be compared with that of the United States and gave examples, the most unusual being that in an economy measure even the garbage is concentrated for the building up of the livestock. On the German boat in the gulls kept following the ship because all of the garbage was saved to go back on the next boat to feed the pigs in Germany.

Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Friedeman was fined $5 and costs with an alternative of 10 days in the county detention camp on each count. He was arrested by city police.

Joins Sales Staff of Salvage Furniture Firm

$150 Taken From Safe At Voigt's Drug Store

City police are investigating a reported burglary at Voigt's Drug store, 134 E. College avenue, in which $150 was taken sometime Sunday night. Entrance to the store was gained through a rear door and the money was taken from the safe which was opened through the combination, according to Chief of Police George T. Prim.

It Is Said--

That the rarely seen flowers of the snake plant are blooming on a plant owned by Mrs. Richard Blaes, 223 S. Douglas street. Greenhouse men say the plant blooms only about once every 25 years. The flowers on Mrs. Blaes's plant, which she has had about 10 years, are white and star-shaped and smell like spice.

That Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Docka, 419 W. Spring street, are glad they took time to do a little fishing on their way home from Hazelhurst, Wis., early Monday morning, because Mrs. Docka caught a 35-pound muskie, about 45 inches long, at High lake, in the northern lake region. The fish was on display at the Hopfensperger meat market on W. College avenue Monday night.

BRITAIN WELCOMES ITS "ALLIES"

This sign was put up at Croydon airport, at London, as a welcome to Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet when they flew from Paris for a series of conferences with the British cabinet on the Czechoslovakian crisis. The sign was reminiscent of 1914-18 when Tommy Atkins fought beside the French Politi in the trenches. Or, it might be prophetic of another alliance in the near future.

Institute Speakers Charge Home, School, Community With Duty of Curbing Crime, Liquor Violations

"The problem child of today is the bandit of tomorrow," Mrs. Stewart Scrimshaw, Wauwatosa, declared during the opening address of the second World Fellowship institute sponsored by the Interdenominational Council of Church Women at First Congregational church this morning. The general theme was "The City and the Church."

The Rev. Larry L. Harp, member of the committee of the Milwaukee County Ministerial association which investigated tavern and vice conditions asserted "there is too great a friendship between operators in the liquor traffic and enforcement officials" as he reviewed the observations and findings of the committee.

"Education for Character" was the topic discussed by Mrs. Scrimshaw, chairman of the joint committee on education in Wisconsin and chairwoman of the department of education of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs. She charged the home, school and community with the development of character in children to avoid the pitfalls of modern life.

Minors Commit Crime

"The crime situation involves an outlay of 15 billion dollars annually," Mrs. Scrimshaw said. "About 20 per cent of present day crime is committed by minors. There is a murder every 45 minutes and 13 per cent of them are committed by persons under the age of 21 while 28 per cent of robberies, 41 per cent of burglaries and 51 per cent of auto thefts are attributed to juveniles," she continued.

The greatest emphasis of character education must be placed in the home because the most impressionable years are those before the sixth, the speaker said. The problem doesn't end there, however, for the well-trained associate with the untrained and the good may be undone by the bad, she explained.

"We must recreate faith in religion," she said. "A survey shows that children of a church going family have better personalities and make more valuable citizens. The child isn't interested, however, if the parent doesn't attend church."

Combat Communism

"State law prohibits reading of the Bible in public schools but we can demand greater emphasis of character development in schools by teaching respect for law and giving training in alcohol education. We must strike crime at its source," she declared.

Mrs. Scrimshaw declared it is the duty of the community to safeguard against the use of marijuana by high school students and to provide recreational facilities and opportunities for further learning.

"With supervised play and education we must combat the 300 communist newspapers now being printed in the United States. There are six times as many communists in America today as when the revolution broke out in Russia," she concluded.

"Tavern conditions are as rotten now as ever before," the Rev. Mr. Harp declared. "We have not stood by officials with our power of influence and things have gone from bad to worse," he said.

Must Set Examples

Parents must set wholesome examples for their children and it is their responsibility to provide youth with recreation and entertainment in clean surroundings, the speaker said.

He explained the ministerial committee had gathered data from other cities and visited 1,500 taverns.

All College Day Will be Held by Lawrence Students

Vikes Point for Midwest Opener

Squad Drilled Hard
Monday, Hears of
Errors Saturday*LUBENOW REPORTS*Will Help Solve Tackle
Problem; City to Observe Heselton Day

WITH Appleton planning to celebrate Bernie Heselton day Saturday in honor of the Lawrence coach, Viking grid-ers were out for yesterday's drill with more enthusiasm and interest than ever. Lawrence will open the Midwest conference season against Coe Saturday.

If Lawrence had any idea that Saturday's game with Northwestern was perfect, it soon had it taken out when Coach Heselton hauled out a sheet on which he had typed various and sundry errors of omission and commission. There wasn't a single member of the team who missed being called for something that Bernie didn't like. It wasn't a berating by any manner or means, just a notation which indicated that Heselton sees practically everything as the ball game progresses.

Following the skull session, Heselton took his four ends to one spot on the field, sent the backs and centers to another and turned the linemen over to Assistant Coach Ade Dillon. Heselton spent an hour with his wingmen giving each individual attention because he was hardly satisfied with their showing. Dillon drove the linemen like they've never been driven before on a Monday afternoon and the backs tossed passes and went over their plays.

Dillon Scouts Coe
This evening the Vikes probably will hear something about Coe college. Assistant Coach Dillon scouted the Kohawks and he returned with word that the Iowans have a top team, one that appears headed for the honors in Midwest play.

Lawrence hopes for Saturday and for the season received a boost when Leroy Lubenow, a tackle prospect, returned. He was in school last year but had enrolled late. He immediately joined the linemen and got just as much work as anyone.

The Heselton day idea originated with the Lions club which took up the coach's challenge a few days ago to come out and watch the Vikings. As a result some 700 to 1,000 tickets have been printed and members of the club are selling them. The club realizes nothing on the project and no one is asked to buy unless he plans to go.

"Lawrence and the club want to see spectators at Saturday's game to really welcome Coach Heselton," Ben Pfeiffer, chairman of the club's committee handling the project, said yesterday.

Attendance at last week's opening game was unusually large for an opener and fans gave a slant at a Lawrence team that has all kinds of dash and fire and which promises to play interesting ball.

HERE'S A VIKING WITH REAL SPIRIT

There aren't any too many men on the Lawrence college grid squad and when it became obvious Coach Bernie Heselton needed all the talent available last week, John Hastings, Kenosha, above, reported as a candidate for a tackle position. Hastings is handicapped by a right arm which is almost useless but that doesn't keep him from working as hard as it is not harder than any other member of the squad. He figures Heselton can use him as a replacement now and then and his work last Saturday against Northwestern revealed that he can make it as tough as a lot of fellows without his handicap. Hastings also has performed on Coach Art Denney's basketball squads. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Herber Has the Smallest Hands in Pro Football

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK.—(AP)—This week tells the story in the National league. . . . Cubs against Pirates in a three-game series starting today. . . . Pirates still remain the favorites, although thousands are pulling for the Cubs. . . . You can't lose sight of the fact that the Cubs have been on top of a hectic race since July 12 and that's a real test in any man's league. . . . Besides that, they have one of the best balanced clubs in either major league. . . . On the other hand the Cubs are coming along under the inspiring leadership of old Gabby Hartnett and they have two red hot pitchers right now in Bill Lee and Clay Bryant. . . . Anything can happen, brothers.

Mid-west fans don't like the attention this column pays to the Southwest conference and one bird (who doesn't bother to sign his name) points out that Rice, which won the championship down there, was beaten by Oklahoma, which was not

Veteran Returns to Marquette Grid Team

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Marquette university's football team, which opens its season against Wisconsin at Madison Saturday, was bolstered yesterday by the return to form of Al Beltinger, veteran first string guard who was ill last week. The only major absentee was Gil Thomsen, rugged Kenosha sophomore. In his absence, Coach Paddy Driscoll is using Bill Burke champion of the Big Six. . . . Six former South Bend, Ind., high school players were members of this year's Western All-Stars which may or may not be something of a record. . . . Thanks to the plugging of Fred Digby of the New Orleans item, the preppers of that city will get the use of the new municipal stadium on the cuff.

We'll go on record as predicting the Yanks will take either the Cubs or the Pirates in five games. . . . Sol Goldberg, popper of the famous Marshall, has sold his picture show in Elkins, Va., so he can follow Pitt on the road. . . . (He had to go to the opposition house to see the newsreels, anyway). . . . Not to Jimmy Gurnett, Sarasota, Fla.: You can reach Rader Winget, care of the Associated Press, London.

Doc Williamson, the football expert, likes Texas Tech and Auburn. . . . There is no change in plans for a big shakeup on the Giants. . . . Only a bare half dozen are sure of their jobs next year. . . . If George McAfee hadn't gone on the shelf, Duke would have had the best backfield in the south in McAfee, Eric Tipton, Irish O'Mara and Bob Spangler.

Whizzer White is bringing in the dough at the box office for the Pittsburgh Pirates. . . . "Little Monk" Simons, who starred for Tulane in the first sugar bowl game, is doing all right as assistant to Red Dawson, head coach of the Greenies. His old man, "Big Monk" has been trainer for Tulane for so long we have to remember. . . . Army Herber, passing star of the Green Bay Packers, has the smallest hands in pro football. . . . Usually passers need large mitts but Herber's success is due to the fact that he has the wrists of a circus aerialist and a tremendous grip.

St. Paul Wins Third Straight

Vic Frasier Has Chance to Climb American As- sociation Finale

Kansas City.—(AP)—Vic Frasier, who clinched the semi-final playoff with Milwaukee, has a chance tonight to clinch the American association finale for St. Paul and send the Saints into the Little World series against the International league champ.

His opponent in the fifth playoff game will be Marvin Brauer, who won the series opener in St. Paul to give Kansas City its only victory over the Saints. The Saints timely hitting and combined six-hit pitching of three hurlers gave them their third straight last night, 7-1.

Rookie Hurler Helps Yanks Win

Steve Sundra Tosses New Yorkers to 4-3 Victory
Over Boston

New York.—(AP)—Rookie Pitcher Steve Sundra yanked the New York Yankees out of the doldrums yesterday by beating the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 3. It was the best champions' second victory in their last 10 games.

The Yanks picked up a run in the fourth on DiMaggio's single, an outfield error that allowed him to go to third and Lou Gehrig's hit. Boston scored two in the fifth and one in the sixth with Ben Chapman contributing a single to the first rally and a double to the second.

Joe Giern, second string catcher who replaced Bill Dickey, ill with pneumonia, contributed the big blow of the Yanks, winning three-run rally in the sixth. He doubled scoring, Seikirk and Gordon and tallied when Pinky Higgins threw Sundra's grounder past first.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

THE SPORTS DEPARTMENT'S first football guessing contest is history, interesting history, and has resulted in changing a couple of the rules. There were 58 persons who sent in their guesses and some were close and some far from close. The indications are that next week, now that fans have had a chance to hear about most of the teams, the guesses will increase. Appleton had 30 entrants, Menasha 6, Neenah 2, Kimberly 6, Seymour 1, New London 5 and Little Chute 8.

Seymour's one entry caused us a few minutes of pondering because we had offered tickets to the winners in eight cities: Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, Kimberly, Little Chute, New London and Clintonville. So, after this we'll include all Marion and Manawa guesses with Clintonville, Seymour, Hortonville and Black Creek guesses with Appleton, and reserve the right to include any other unexpected entries with those of any city nearest that town or village.

The Seymour man who caused us a few minutes of quick thinking was Earl Spaude who used to play guard on the Lawrence football team. He picked West Green Bay to beat Manitowoc by 7 to 0 and Army to beat Wichita U. by 32 to 0, and thereby led the entire field. So we're going to give him a ticket to the Lawrence game Saturday.

There was something of a tie for the Appleton award, ten persons picking one winner. As in the past, we have broken the tie by giving the ticket to the person who came closest on the greatest number after the correct score. He is Don Rogers, Route 3, Appleton. He picked Army over Wichita by 32 to 0 and missed by a single point on Pittsburgh-West Virginia and Minnesota-Washington U.

The other winners and the game on which they were right were: New London—L. Werner, who picked Green Bay West over Manitowoc by 7 to 0.

Neenah—Bill Lawson, 248 Fifth street, who picked West DePere over Clintonville by 25 to 0.

Menasha—Ray Novakowski, 617 Seventh street, who picked St. Mary over St. John by 13 to 0.

Little Chute—Don Peeters, who picked St. Mary over St. John by 13 to 0 and missed on West over Manitowoc and Pittsburgh over West Virginia by a point, and therefore gets the nod over Jerry Lamers who picked St. Mary over St. John and Lawrence Hecksacker who picked West over Manitowoc.

Kimberly—No winners; no correct scores.

Clintonville—No entries.

In Appleton there were several persons who picked one score each. They were Otto Kirk, 518 S. Telulah, who picked St. Mary over St. John; Edward Gregorius, 314 E. Pacific street, the same score; Don Paulie, Route 3, Appleton, the same; Cy Burton, 903 N. Morrison street, Appleton over Fond du Lac; Charles Lemberger, 825 N. Division street, the same score; Jack Notebaert, vocational school, Kimberly over Omro, 13 to 12; Clarence Hein, 803 N. Division street, Alabama over Southern Cal, 19 to 7; and Albert Novakowski, Pi Delta house and Lawrence college halfback, who picked Green Bay West over Manitowoc, 7 to 0, and who had so much faith in his Lawrence team he picked the Vikes by 42 to 0 over Northwestern. Elmer Collar, Hortonville, also picked one right, St. Mary over St. John.

As you've probably noticed, St. Mary over St. John was the easiest to guess. West over Manitowoc came second while Appleton's score over Fond du Lac was tough and no one guessed the Lawrence score over Northwestern college.

Ticket winners will receive their ducats in a few days.

It isn't too late to get into the contest and a chance for a ticket each week or those two tickets to the Wisconsin-Minnesota game on Nov. 19 at Madison. Forms of all persons who compete will be kept on file and the person with the greatest number of winners will get the ducats. In the event of a tie we'll decide on the basis of winners and scores which came closest to being winners.

And below is the list for this week. Remember to sign your name and address. Also, forms must be in the Post-Crescent office by 7 o'clock Friday night or postmarked by 6 o'clock Friday evening.

HERE'S THE $100 ANTI-FREEZE

you can put in this very day

Fifty cents' worth now keeps most cars safe down to 10° above zero. MAYBE this is an "Indian Summer" day, when you're not even thinking of anti-freeze. But you never know when a cold snap will come. Set your mind at ease now. Have your dealer or service station man put a couple of quarts of DuPont "Zerone" Anti-freeze in your car today. Check the radiator solution from time to time. When winter gets down to real business, add enough "Zerone" for lower temperatures. Scientific tests prove that radiator losses are chiefly mechanical, and even then you lose a solution of "Zerone" and water—not one or the other alone. With "Zerone" you get improved engine performance, due to better heat dissipation, and more pep and efficiency, through prevention of rust and corrosion in a clean cooling system. All for only $1.00 a gallon. DuPont, "Zerone" Div., Wilmington, Del.

Ferebee Is Grinding Out 600 Holes in 8 Cities in Four Days

Chicago.—(AP)—J. Smith Ferebee, Chicago marathon golfer, climbed wearily out of bed this morning and headed for Milwaukee and another round of golf.

He arrived in his special plane last night after finishing the first half of his transcontinental golf tour at St. Louis. After 12 holes in Milwaukee the young LaSalle street broker will be back today for a similar stunt at Olympia fields.

Ferebee's goal is 600 holes of golf in four days and in eight cities. He finished his round at St. Louis with the aid of flood lighted trucks, posting an 87 for the last 18 holes to boost his total to 332 strokes. Tomorrow he will play in Philadelphia and New York—if he maintains his schedule.

First Year Men To Flank Badger Football Squad

Two New Players Earn End
Berths for Tilt With Marquette

MADISON.—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin football team is likely to be flanked by a pair of first year men when it takes the field Saturday afternoon against Marquette university's Hilltoppers. Gordon Gile, husky Shorewood end, is the probable choice of Coach Harry Stuhldreher to start at the left flank and Al Lorenz, Chicago, will probably hold down the right side of the forward wall.

Gile, who has been giving Ralph Moeller, letterman from Watertown, a battle seems to have gained an edge in the last week. Moeller, a sprint man on the track squad, did not play spring football and this fact seems to have handicapped him thus far.

Oshkosh Youth Hurt
Lorenz moved into the first string lineup when Bob Weigandt, Oshkosh, sustained a leg injury. Weigandt is still limping badly and it is doubtful if he will see much, if any action Saturday.

Yesterday's drill was devoted to a defensive line scrimmage, before which the freshmen ran through Marquette formations. Stuhldreher expressed satisfaction with his regular line, especially the guards and tackles.

The session opened with tackling and blocking and a "dummy" offensive scrimmage. Today Stuhldreher plans to send his charges through a long scrimmage with the yearlings using Hilltop plays.

John Doyle, who was called home due to the death of his uncle, returned today and will be able to play Saturday. However, Jim Martin, Wauwatosa halfback, will be withheld from the Marquette tilt. He is still hobbling about with a sprained ankle. Bill Garrett, tackle and Ed Wegner, end will be ready.

Red Sox, 4-3.

Hartnett Gambles On Dizzy Dean in 1st Crucial Tilt

Cubs Will be Half Game
Behind if They Win
Series Opener

BY ARNOLD DERLITZKI
CHICAGO.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs paid plenty for Dizzy Dean and expected plenty of victories in return, but Manager Gabby Hartnett was willing to settle for one today—the series opener against Pittsburgh's National league leaders.

Dean and his famous sore arm proved a gamble for the Cubs from the start. Today he was Hartnett's finesse to a championship.

If he wins, the Cubs would be a half game behind the pace setters and Hartnett would have his highest trumps—Clay Bryant and Bill Lee—to play against the Bucs tomorrow and Wednesday.

Wins Seven Straight
If he loses, the Cubs still would retain an outside chance. It was merely another gamble for Hartnett, who has called enough turns to bring the Cubs 17 of their last 20 games—seven of them in a row.

Jim Tobin was the pitching choice of Pirate Manager Pie Traynor, who said "we don't care a whoop who Chicago pitches against us. We are steaming at our proper pace now and if we win five of our remaining seven games, it doesn't make any difference how many the Cubs win."

"I'm going to play my three aces—Jim Tobin, Bob Klinger and Russ Bauers—one right after the other. We've won eight of our last 10 games and these three have accounted for six of those eight. That's doing pretty good in my book."

Knocked From Box
Dean's book was something else. The pitcher for whom the Cubs gave $185,000 and three players, made his last start Aug. 20—against the Pirates. He was knocked from the box. After the defeat, his only one of the season compared with six wins, the standing showed the Cubs nine games out of first.

Since then Dean has pitched six and two-thirds scoreless innings in three appearances as a relief pitcher. He last saw action Sept. 18.

And while old Diz has been a gamble all season, Hartnett believed he was a good one today.

If not that, maybe a hunch—three years ago today the Cubs won the National league pennant as Bill Lee outpitched Dean 6 to 2 in the first game of a double header with the St. Louis Cardinals.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Bill Lee and Frank Demaree, Cubs—Lee checked Cardinals with 12 hits. Demaree drove in three runs with three singles as Cubs downed St. Louis, 6-3.

Joe Glenn, Yankees—Collected two singles and double and drove home two runs as Yanks shaded Red Sox, 4-3.

Canvass Gives Democratic Assembly Nomination To Neenah Man

Menasha — The official canvass of ballots in the primary election gave William Draheim, Neenah, a lead of one vote over John Grimes, town of Neenah, in the race for the Democratic nomination for member of assembly from the Second district, according to A. E. Hedke, Winnebago county clerk.

A miscount in the reports last Tuesday night gave Grimes 609 votes and Draheim 607. Corrected totals Monday by the board of canvassers, of which J. F. Shea, chairman of the county board, is a member, gave Draheim 605 votes and Grimes 604.

Two errors were discovered in the first report, one of which cost Draheim two votes. In the first reports Draheim received eight and Grimes received 19 in the village of Omro but the corrected report gave Grimes 14 and did not change the Draheim total. In the town of Poygan the first report gave Draheim four and Grimes 19. The canvass Monday gave Draheim two and left Grimes' total at 19.

Evening School Will Give Harmony Course

Neenah — A course in harmony will be one of the subjects offered by the Neenah Evening school which opens at the high school Monday, Oct. 3, Carl Christensen, director, reported today.

The course will not require any previous knowledge of harmony, the director explained and will be open to anyone who understands the notation of music as to pitch and rhythm and even this will be reviewed. All the problems are in analysis of quotations from composition which are familiar to most of the students. He said that since the course does not teach how to write music and doesn't include any problems in harmonizing either soprano or basses, there is no need for learning all the minute rules of writing music or connecting chords and every few are given.

In 40 lessons the students are taught to recognize all the chords and non-harmonic tones used in standard music, enabling better sightreading. Classes will meet twice a week for 20 weeks. John Ross Frampton will be the instructor.

Neenah Harriers Called for Drills

First Cross Country Team To Be Organized at High School

Neenah — Coach Ole Jorgensen today issued a call for candidates for the Neenah High school cross country track team.

The call inaugurated a new type of sport to be conducted in the school, for it will be the first time in the history of the school that cross country running will be held.

The purpose of starting a cross country team, Coach Jorgensen pointed out, is to develop distance runners for the varsity track team. During the last few years, there has been a dearth of long distance runners on the track teams which has hampered the Red Rockets in piling up points in meets. The activity also will offer high school athletes still another sport, especially for those who don't go out for football and are idle until basketball and track seasons start.

The sport is not popular among high schools in this vicinity, and school officials aren't sure whether dual meets can be scheduled. Providing likely candidates try out for the team, it is planned to send the squad to the state meet which will be held at South Milwaukee Nov. 4. If there is a large enough turnout this afternoon, the coach will map a course for the runners and daily practices will be held.

Baraboo Again Is Starting Place for LaFollette Drive

Governor Begins Campaign for 4th Term on Familiar Grounds

By Staff Correspondent

Baraboo—This little city in rural Sauk county has for nearly half a century been a favorite stamping ground for the LaFollette clan. Here was born Belle Case LaFollette many years ago. Here Governor Phil and Senator Bob spent much of their boyhood and most of their summer vacations during their school days, and from a platform here Governor Phil began four previous campaigns for the governorship.

And here last night Governor LaFollette started his fifth gubernatorial campaign with a large mass meeting at the high school gymnasium. With him on the platform were Senator LaFollette and the Progressive candidates for other state offices, signalling the official beginning of a campaign which many observers believe will be the hardest which has been waged since the Progressive party was formed four years ago.

The governor quickly made clear that he has no intention of being placed on the defensive when he declared that his administration last year produced "one of the greatest legislative years in Wisconsin's history," despite the efforts of "reactionaries" in the assembly and house who tried to throttle his program.

Reviewing the deeds of both legislative sessions last year, which opposing politicians sneered as "dictatorial," he said that "the accomplishments of the last legislature rank with the constructive records of the legislatures of 1903, 1905, 1911, and 1923."

The reason why the accomplishments were so great, he said, "was the requirement that its members work eight hours a day, six days a week."

The governor praised the Democrats and Republicans who aided in the passage of his program, and said that "by its legislative accomplishments last year, Wisconsin has shown once more that democracy can function—that it can act constructively to solve the complex problems of contemporary government."

LaFollette has embarked on a speaking tour which will bring him into every county in the state before election day, and which entails three or four speeches daily. This week he will appear in central Wisconsin, while he will reach the Fox River Valley section early in October, his headquarters has announced.

Henry Starck Is Named Phalanx Club Secretary

Henry Starck was elected secretary of the Wolverine Phalanx club at a meeting last night at the Y.M.C.A. He replaces Donald Mueller, who resigned.

The club made arrangements for a debate on the question, "Is Hitler Justified in Entering Czechoslovakia?" The question will be discussed in two weeks. Boys chosen to cover the topic are: William L. Decker and Daniel Wulgar; negative, Carl Bohnsack and Leonard Dale. Each will talk from five to eight minutes and then the subject will be opened to general discussion.

Little Activity in Wars In Spain and on Orient

Hendaye, France.—(AP)—Bad weather forced a continued lack of action in the Spanish civil war.

Shanghai.—(AP)—The China front was comparatively quiet. Japanese admitted their advance toward Sinyang had "slowed."

Succumb to Injuries

Waukesha.—(AP)—Injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile near here last Thursday caused the death of Mrs. Mary Gebhardt, 74, at a Waukesha hospital yesterday.

Soviet Newspapers Stress Roosevelt's Plea, Ignore Hitler

Moscow.—(AP)—Soviet newspapers ignored Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech today, but gave prominent display to President Roosevelt's appeal for peace.

The stronger stand taken by Great Britain and France was viewed in Soviet quarters as a justification of Moscow's repeated warnings against the folly of trying to buy off Hitler with concessions.

Comsomol Pravda, Organ of the young communists, commented that Soviet Russia had "once more confirmed its loyalty to its international pledges and particularly its readiness, together with France, to come to the assistance of Czechoslovakia."

Eastern Star to Have Anniversary Celebration at Brillion to Be Held During October

Brillion.—At the meeting of the Eastern Star lodge in the Masonic temple Friday evening, plans were made for the lodge to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary sometime in October. The lodge plans to invite the Manitowish, New Holstein and Chilton chapters to the celebration. Plans have not been completed.

The committee appointed at Friday night's meeting consists of Mrs. A. F. Paustian, chairman, Miss Mabel Luecker, and Mrs. Florence Maltby.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ross entertained friends and relatives at their home Saturday evening in honor of the latter's birthday anniversary. Schafkopf and five hundred were the diversions of the evening. Awards at five hundred were received by the Mesdames, Edward Keller, Anna Hermans and Robert Eick. Guests were the Messrs, and Mesdames, Robert Eick, Aldore Ross, Le Roy Klein, Adolph Ecker and Robert Olin and Norman Olin and family, the latter of Potter and the Mesdames Edward Keller, Anna Hermans and Helena Jooss.

Miss Johanna Schwartz was hostess to the members of the Nickelodians at her home Saturday evening.

David Pagel entertained classmates and friends at his home Friday in honor of his birthday anniversary.

Henry Krueger returned to his home Friday after having been a patient at the St. Elizabeth hospital at Appleton.

Miss and Miss of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Miss Vela McComb of Chicago are spending several days at their home due to the serious illness of their father, Dr. I. N. McComb.

Repeatedly offered jobs on newspapers and magazines, he refused them all and stuck grimly to the hope that he would click with some of his screen stories. Thought, then, that I had never met a bigger sap.

Today, he drove me to his "shack" in the Hollywood Hills in a new car, a Cadillac. The "shack" proved to be a ten room mansion. In its front foot living room stood a brand new, ultra-expensive grand piano and a combination radio-phonograph that must have cost at least a thousand. And he is riding hard the most expensive collector's hobby of them all—first editions. I estimate his library at $3,000.

According to every sane standard, that writer was a fool who deserved to starve. And the wife who encouraged his folly deserved the fate that usually befalls this world's grasshoppers. But this is Hollywood and its standards don't apply. Is it any wonder that motion picture people are such incurable optimists?

The Lakesiders trouped in for an evening of bridge last night and someone suggested a novel competition—the coming of in-a-line descriptions of famous movie stars. Here are some of the better efforts, salvaged from the waste basket when the shouting was over: Katharine Hepburn—a puppet with the strings still there; Greta Garbo—the woman who wears her death mask; Dorothy Lamour—a South Sea travel poster come to life; Madeleine Carroll—an exquisite sculpture—in dry ice; Alice Faye—radiant health; Shirley Temple—Life's climax—in childhood. Try it some evening when you've nothing better to do.

Gail Patrick is taking a series of allergy tests in an effort to find out just what causes her persistent hay fever.

Five little Mexican boys have been working in "Arizona Wildcat." Ragged, uncombed and barefooted, they were such "regular" kids, that they soon became favorites with everyone on the set and the director, who had personally selected them because they "looked their parts," congratulated himself anew whenever he saw them. Yesterday, they were paid for a week's work and today, when they arrived on the set, they were unrecognized. Their dotting mothers had taken them in hand. Their hair was freshly cut and neatly combed; their ragged, characterful clothes had been replaced by finery. One look at them and the director began to tear his hair and shout for "wardrobe."

They're fitted out again in rags, Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. The couple married Dec. 25, 1935 and separated last June.

Menasha Pastor Is Given Office at Church Parley

THE Rev. William A. Jacobs, Menasha, was elected assistant secretary for the centennial conference of Wisconsin Congregational churches which opened Monday at Madison for a 3-day session. Other convention officers are the Rev. Carl Stackman, Burlington, first assistant moderator; the Rev. S. G. Ruegg, Mineral Point, second assistant moderator; and the Rev. William R. Dixon, Menomonie, secretary.

Replies to a questionnaire distributed by Dr. John B. Hanna, pastor of First Congregational church, Appleton, disclosed that Wisconsin Congregational ministers in general blame non-sectarian educational institutions for indifference of some college graduates to religious organizations. About 80 ministers said they found that youths who attended college "very often" had lost interest in church work when they returned home, and blamed non-sectarian educational institutions for their indifference.

The panel discussion on "The Church and the College" Monday afternoon at which Dr. Hanna gave his report was participated in by President J. D. Brownell of Northland college, President Silas Evans

Maves Is New Head Of League

ROBERT MAVES was elected president of Senior Lutheran League of First English Lutheran church at its first fall meeting last night at the parish hall. Kenneth Sieth was chosen vice president, Miss Vera Mielke, treasurer, Miss Helen Aykens, financial secretary, and Miss Helen Kunz was reelected recording secretary.

Plans were made for a box social to be held Oct. 24 to which the leagues of Oshkosh, Green Bay, De Pere, Clintonville, and Seymour will be invited. The rally at Oshkosh and the state convention at Green Bay were discussed, the latter meeting having been held last Saturday and Sunday. Plans were made for beginning the church paper campaign on Oct. 2. Twenty members were present. The next meeting will be Oct. 31.

The reading circle of First English Lutheran church will meet at 2:15 Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chester Heinritz, 1428 N. Appleton street. Mrs. F. M. Foor will be reader.

A vegetable and salad bowl shower for the kitchen of First Baptist church will be held in connection with a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday at the church for of Ripon and President Irving Maurer of Beloit. Opinion of other church leaders taking part in the discussion from the floor was to the effect that the church ought to take a "more lively" interest in college training and that the colleges themselves likewise should stress development of character among students as well as general education in lay subjects.

Sees Solution
The Rev. Oscar E. Maurer, New Haven, Conn., national moderator of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, said last night that "a true unanimity of the Christian spirit" alone can save a world now on the brink of war. He urged church people everywhere to forget denominational barriers to work in Christian lines.

"The world tonight in its political and economic phases is on the brink of the abyss of war," he said. "The world is disintegrating, but the spirit of 'togetherness' is growing. This 'togetherness' in Christ will save civilization."

The Rev. Mr. Maurer spoke to more than 200 pastors and laymen attending the centennial conference. A similar message was delivered earlier by the Rev. Hugh Elmer Brown, president of the national board of home missions.

"I salute the church of tomorrow," Mr. Brown said. "It is a church grappling with war and insisting on peace as the true dictator of the world. One of the most pathetic things today is the silence of the Christian World."

WILL BE BRIDE

Miss Marion Uebele, above, who has been teaching at Edison school, will become the bride of Orville Selig, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Selig, 334 E. Randall street, on Oct. 18. Miss Uebele is the daughter of Mrs. Louise Uebele, 300 N. Catherine street.

CLUB SPEAKER DISPLAYS CHINESE TAPESTRIES

The exquisite Chinese tapestries and linens which Mrs. Malcolm Rosholt of Rosholt, Wis., showed Monday night at the Appleton Woman's club evoked almost as much interest on the part of her audience as the lecture she gave earlier in the evening on "The Romance of Life in Shanghai." Wearing a mandarin coat decorated with the difficult Feking stitch, she is at the right above showing a classic Chinese wall hanging to Mrs. L. M. Rosholt, 415 W. Parkway boulevard, left, at whose home she is a guest. The husbands of the two women are distantly related. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Clubwomen Hear Story Of Shanghai Bombings

THE Shanghai bombings that were just headlines to most American women in the summer of 1937 were a real danger to Mrs. Malcolm Rosholt, who spoke at the Appleton Woman's club Monday night on her experiences in Shanghai. Many nights when Japanese anti-aircraft guns were aimed at a Chinese plane flying over her apartment house, she took her infant daughter downstairs and stood in a sheltered nook beneath a stairway till the bombardment ceased.

Mrs. Rosholt went to Shanghai in 1933 as a bride. Her husband worked for the China Press and the Associated Press and she taught English for several years in a Chinese boys' school.

She learned more from the boys than they learned from her, she said, for she had them write their themes on Chinese customs and life. They are as apt as American children

Committees Preparing For Pageant

MOST brides, when they have shaken the rice from their veils and satin gowns and laid them away in tissue wrappings, feel a pang of regret that all this finery probably never will be worn again. This week, however, many wedding gowns of years ago as well as those of more recent vintage will come into their own again, if only for a brief period, when they appear in the wedding gown pageant to be sponsored by the Social Union of First Methodist church Friday at the church.

Committees for the event are making the final preparations for the pageant these last few days. The gown committee which has succeeded in getting gowns from every decade in United States history since 1812 includes the following women: Mrs. Olin Mead, Mrs. J. B. MacLaren, Mrs. G. C. Cast, Mrs. Oscar Bruss, Mrs. Earl Weitemann, Mrs. Judson Rosebush, Mrs. H. L. Playman, Mrs. Herman Heckert, Mrs. George Nixon, Mrs. B. G. Bialkowsky, Mrs. Carl D. Neidhold and Mrs. George Nolting.

The church will be decorated to represent the scene of an actual wedding, and organ music will provide a background for the parade of brides. The decoration committee consists of Mrs. O. R. Klobner, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Kepler; Mrs. A. T. Gardner; Mrs. Louis Micheln; Mrs. F. F. Wheeler; Mrs. Karl M. Haugen, Mrs. Clement Ketchum, Mrs. Delmar Petersen, Mrs. Leigh S. Wolfe, Mrs. Hamilton Craig, Mrs. M. D. Bro, Mrs. J. B. Mallory, Mrs. William Bauernfeind, Mrs. J. I. Davis and Mrs. Willard Hackelman.

Prices of Wheat In Sharp Decline On Chicago Mart

Quotations Rally After Chamberlain Fails to Confirm Peace Hopes

Chicago—(AP)—Wheat plunged downward approximately 2 cents a bushel late today, influenced largely by reported plans afoot for an international commission to define Sudetenland frontiers by Oct. 1.

The market, however, rallied abruptly when a radio address by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain failed to confirm peace hopes.

The arrangement for defining Sudetenland frontiers, it had been asserted, would facilitate occupation of Sudetenland by the Germans before the Hitler deadline Saturday.

Receipts were: wheat 32 cars, corn 235, oats 25.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1-1/2 cents down compared with yesterday's finish, Dec. 66-67, May 67-3, corn 1/2 to 1 cent lower, Dec. 50-1/2 May 53-1/2, and oats 1-1/2 off.

The London stock market ended lower, along with Paris, Amsterdam and Berlin took on a firmer tone. Plans to govern the British stock change in the event of war were being perfected.

Fall Migration Offers Interesting Bird Study

BY CLARA HUSSONG
Step out of the house any of these September mornings and from the trees and shrubs around you will come strange bird voices, unfamiliar chirps and trills which remind you that the southward migration of birds is in progress. The birds you hear have come from some northern point after traveling from dusk until dawn they have chosen your grounds in which to rest and feed before continuing their journeys.

Among the many southward flying species are a number which will remain in the state through the winter. Chickadees, red and white-breasted nuthatches, ruby and gold-crowned kinglets, brown creepers and others consider Wisconsin far enough south for their winter homes. Through the coldest spells they hide in sheltered ravines and thickets but on warm sunny days they visit farm orchards and city parks and streets.

A number of interesting bird study projects can be carried out during the fall migration. One of these is to keep a record of the last date on which you see our common summer birds; the various sparrows and swallows, bluebirds, robins, wrens, meadowlarks and thrashers.

Swallows are leaving us these days and each time I see one I write down the date. Then, if I see one at a later date, I cross out the former record. The barn, cliff and rough-winged swallows leave a little earlier than the purple martin, tree and bank swallows, according to my records.

Another activity for fall is to visit a certain spot, park, grove, weedy pasture or swamp, at regular intervals and list all the birds seen at each visit. If you keep this up for a number of years you will soon have an accurate account of just when to look for the southward flying thrushes, warblers, tanagers, flycatchers and others.

Many times if you notice one bird you begin looking for another of an entirely different species because experience has taught you that in both the spring and fall migrations they appear at the same time. For instance, each year about the middle of April I see my first hermit thrush and, on the same day, my first sap-sucker. In late September or early October I see them again on their way south.

The olive-backed thrush and the white-throated sparrow is another pair of birds which seem to travel together. About this time you can begin looking for them. The thrush is silent but the clear whistle of the white-throat can be heard almost as frequently as during the spring flight.

If you are interested in birds but haven't much time for field hikes, try a five or ten minute tour of your grounds each morning. At this time, when new birds arrive nightly, you will be amply rewarded. I stepped out of the back door this morning with a pan of garbage and before I had gone 10 feet I saw three gold-finches in the neighbor's yard. They were wearing their winter coats, a grayish-green replacing the bright yellow of their summer wardrobe. To many people these birds are still "wild canaries."

A few steps farther I heard the lisp chirp of juncos and soon saw several fly from a tree in a neighbor's yard to the box elder near the bird path of our neighbor on the other side. The juncos were sharply scolded by the wrens, who hold absolute sway over the bath and the surrounding territory. I could hear sharp chirps and upon investigating I found two ruby-crowned kinglets, a Tennessee warbler and another small bird, apparently a warbler, who kept himself out of sight most of the time.

While on their migratory flights most song birds rest and feed during the day and continue flying at night. Some birds feed while on the wing and these can travel by day, getting their food as they go along. Among those who follow this method are the whip-poor-wills, nightawks, swallows and chimney swifts.

Found Dead Thrush
When the nights are clear night flying birds fly at a great altitude but on cloudy, stormy nights they descend to a lower plane. It is on these stormy nights that many birds are killed, by dashing into power or telephone wires or other obstructions.

A few weeks ago I found a dead water thrush in the back yard. I could find no mark of injury but apparently it had flown into something during the previous stormy night. Remembering now many times I had watched this bird walk daintily under shrubbery or at the edge of a woodland pool, I examined its legs and feet carefully. They were long, slender and flesh-colored. Most warblers, to which group the water thrush belongs, are hoppers, but the water thrush and its close relative, the oven bird, are walkers. They step prettily over the ground, tapping their tails as they go.
